U.S. Fallout Detection Plans Being Expanded

Health Service Eyes Possible Hazard in Soviet Nuclear Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Public Health Service is expanding its fallout detection network and is speeding efforts to determine whether any significant health hazard may be expected from the Soviet Union's nuclear tests in the atmosphere, it was learned today.

At the same time, top fallout experts of the agency told a reporter that even the comparatively high levels of atmospheric radiation reported at least temporarily in some parts of the country could be exceeded many times without necessarily posing a significant health threat.

They said it all boils down to this: Regardless of what the atmospheric readings show, any threat to health depends on how much and what kinds of radioactive material ultimately are ingested by people in milk, water and food—or are inhaled.

So far, they said, they have not made sufficient tests to enable estimates on these latter points—but some new steps are designed to help speed such assessments.

They disclosed these new actions:

1. Two additional fallout detection stations were added during the last few days to add to the 45 stations in 39 states. The new ones are at Bismarck, N.D., and Nashville, Tenn.

2. Six of the approximately 60 stations maintained by the service's radiological health division to take samples of milk to allow analysis of radioactive content have been alerted to take samples every day, instead of monthly as all stations did previously.

3. Ten of the stations in the nationwide network of fallout detection stations are being equipped with special apparatus designed to get better estimates than heretofore of the actual amount of radioactive iodine-131 which may be present in air samples.

4. The stations getting the new "iodine samplers," reported Ernest Anderson, chief of technical operation, are located at Seattle, Wash.; Berkeley, Calif.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Boise, Idaho; Helena, Mont.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Madison, Wis.; Anchorage, Alaska and Rockville, Md.

Ohio Street Funds Get State Boost

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sagging balances in the street and road funds of Ohio cities, villages, counties and townships got a big boost this week with the distribution of $16.6 million in auto license and gasoline tax money.

State Auditor James A. Rhodes, whose office distributed the money, said motor vehicle license money provided $10,494,592, the major part of this going to county governments. Cities and villages which are districts of auto registration received the balance.

More than half of the $6,190,740 in gasoline tax revenues went to cities and villages. Each county received $20,000 and each township was given $800.

In her suit, Mrs. Patricia Mary Cocks alleged that her husband committed adultery with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Constance France Doy. The husband is 26-year-old Alan Peter Cocks, a commercial artist.

16 Leave Today for Service; Physicals Are Slated for 17

Sixteen Pickaway County men sounded farewells to their families here early today as they boarded a transit bus destined for the Fort Hayes Induction Center, Columbus, for a two-year stretch with the Army.

In addition to the 16 men reporting for induction, 17 Pickaway County men accompanied the Army bound men for physical examinations at the induction center. Age of the inductees ranged from 19 to 23.

Miss Regina Thornton, Selective Service clerk, said the bus was chartered for the 33 local men who made the trip.

The 17 who were to take physical examinations will be classified for possible future induction after results of today's tests are forwarded to the local Selective Service Board.

Moscow-Cuba Communique Is Softer on U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — A joint communique that some Western observers viewed as soft-pedaling Moscow's commitment to Cuba was issued today at the end of the 10-day visit of Cuba's President Osvaldo Dorticos.

A Kremlin Cuban-Soviet friendship rally Wednesday resounded to hostile references to the United States, which was accused of threatening the Cuban revolution.

But the joint communique published in Pravda, the Communist party paper, as Dorticos took off for Peiping was considerably milder than past Cuban-Soviet statements that have carried charges of "American imperialism" in Latin America.

The abortive April invasion of Cuba by American-trained Cuban exiles was referred to casually without the usual condemnation of Washington.

Noticeably missing, too, was the usual call to the rest of Latin America to follow the example of Fidel Castro's Cuban revolution.

Without mentioning Latin America, the communique cited Cuba as a "remarkable example for peoples fighting to rid their countries of the domination of foreign monopolies and for their complete national liberation."

The statement said the talks between Dorticos and Soviet Premier Khrushchev "affirmed the solidarity of the positions of the Soviet Union and the Republic of Cuba on all international questions discussed."

Dayton Area Bookie Centers Are Raided

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Six persons were arrested Wednesday during a raid at two houses east of here which officers said were "big-time horse race clearing houses."

Chief Montgomery County Deputy Tom Wilson said the adjacent houses served at least 40 Dayton area bookies. While officers were still in the house they answered 50 calls from area bookies and from horse race tracks throughout the nation.

Being held for investigation are Mike Dunlevy; James W. Dean, 31; Richard Skinner, 30; Helen Dunlevy, 30, and Alice Ardella, 25, all of the Dayton area, and Charles Vogel, 32, of Tipp City.

Kennedy To Address U.N. Monday on Disarmament

Uneasy Cease-Fire Rules in Katanga

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (AP) — An uneasy cease-fire was proclaimed today in embattled Katanga but the danger of civil war still hung over the Congo.

President Moise Tshombe of Katanga and the U.N. command signed a provisional cease-fire that froze the positions of their warring forces. Still unsettled is the issue that led to the shooting—Katanga's secession.

While a lull in the fighting was already evident before the peace pact was reached there were no immediate reports whether all shooting had stopped according to the timetable set for one minute past midnight.

A new threat came from the Congo central government, which has been a bystander during the eight days of fighting between the Katangan forces and U.N. troops acting at the government request. With Tshombe as adamant as ever in keeping his mineral-rich province independent, Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula alerted the Congolese army with the declaration the central government would "spare no effort to end Katanga's secession."

Speaking in Leopoldville before the cease-fire was announced, Adoula warned his government: "I will reply to force with force."

The shadow of the late Patrice Lumumba hung over the Congo capital. Supporters of the slain leftist former premier demonstrated in the streets shouting anti-Western slogans, and Soviet diplomats, kicked out after Lumumba's overthrow, moved back to set up shop again.

The provisional cease-fire calling for a freeze in all military operations in Katanga was reached Wednesday night in a cordial but cool atmosphere on neutral grounds in this Northern Rhodesian frontier town.

Smiling and outwardly confident, Tshombe made the announcement first at a news conference. Mahmoud Khari of Tunisia, who took over as chief U.N. negotiator after Dag Hammarskjöld met his death in a plane crash flying to the peace talks, confirmed the agreement later.

Both sides emphasized that the agreement is subject to approval by U.N. headquarters in New York.

Wall in Berlin Reflects Red Plan Faithfully

BERLIN (AP) — No matter how many times you see it, Berlin's wall is unbelievable.

This ugly line of concrete and barbed wire, cutting a jagged line through the heart of a great city, is something the mind can scarcely accommodate.

The East German Communists, backed by Moscow, hardly could have demonstrated anything so faithfully true to the pattern of communism as pictured by the West.

The absolute priority of political convictions over human relationships was never more clearly shown. The wall is lined with thousands of heartaches.

Old friends can no longer talk to each other, but must wave handkerchiefs across the wall if they can reach it. Lovers look at each other through binoculars. A father shouts up to his little son in a third story window behind the wall.

Old mothers wait in vain for visits from their sons and daughters. Newly married couples turn up in their finery at the wall so parents can take a look. An old man sits in a second floor window on Waldemarstrasse, waving tirelessly at old friends. He is too old to contemplate escape.

The wall, with all its tragedies, attracts Berliners by the thousands. They turn up nightly to wave, to heckle the East German police across the wall, to shout insults.

They hope they will get to see someone escape, but escapes are becoming more difficult.

New Auto Lighting Law Now in Effect

If you are, the habit will be an expensive one from now on.

A new Ohio law went into effect at midnight Wednesday night requiring use of headlights when cars are driven during legal hours of darkness.

The law also lengthened the official hours of darkness from one-half hour after sunset to one-half hour before sunrise. Under previous statutes the period was from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise.

U.S., Soviet Debate Issue Of Red China

Assembly Procedure On Explosive Question Argued by Big Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy will address the United Nations General Assembly next Monday, the White House announced today.

Kennedy is expected to set forth the United States position on disarmament and a nuclear test ban. He is certain to express U.S. policy toward the organization of the United Nations itself in the wake of the death of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

The White House said the United Nations had scheduled a Kennedy speech for Monday morning.

Meanwhile, in New York, the United States and the Soviet Union came to grips in the U.N. General Assembly on the issue of giving Red China a seat in the world body. It was the first time the two big powers agreed that the assembly should debate the issue.

The two big powers are sure to clash, however, when the 21-nation Steering Committee meets later in the day to decide how the explosive question shall be placed before the 99-nation assembly. Still opposed to admitting the Peiping regime, the United States has agreed only to assembly debate on the issue.

The Red China issue was one of several serious cold war disputes that cropped up either on the agenda or in the background almost as soon as the assembly met Tuesday. Among others are Berlin, disarmament and the future of the United Nations itself.

This last involves the task of choosing a successor to the late Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, in the face of stern Soviet opposition.

U.S. Congress Plods Toward Adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress plodded today toward a possible weekend adjournment with a half dozen important issues awaiting action.

Many House members already had pulled up stakes and had left for home. About a score of senators already had departed or were leaving for meetings abroad.

Leaders of both houses hoped for a speedy agreement today on the amount of foreign aid money that will be made available for the current government year and on the final terms for establishment of a disarmament agency.

The Senate voted $4,196,600,000 in foreign aid funds and the House $3,657,500,000. President Kennedy originally had asked for $4,762,500,000 and Congress had agreed earlier to authorize up to $4,253,500,000.

The House scheduled a vote today on a compromise bill for permanent establishment of the Peace Corps, already approved by the Senate.

The Senate was expected to give speedy approval to the nomination of Fowler Hamilton, New York lawyer, as new foreign aid chief.

Senate-House conferees slated a meeting to try to work out differences on the proposed new disarmament agency. The House voted to set up a separate "Arms Control" bureau with a head directly responsible to the President. The Senate had acted to place the agency under the State Department with an undersecretary of state as its head.

Espionage Law Extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to extend espionage laws to activities of American citizens abroad was passed by voice vote in the Senate Wednesday and sent to the White House.

Hurricane Esther Loses Big Punch

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hurricane Esther — apparently tiring from her long journey from the tropics—lost her vicious fury today as she neared Cape Cod and offshore Massachusetts islands.

The weather station at Otis Air Force Base reported, "the eye of the hurricane has closed, winds are diminishing fast and Cape Cod may have no hurricane at all."

The Weather Bureau observation station at Hyannis Airport still referred to the storm as a hurricane.

Otis weather officials said the center of the storm was 35 miles south of Martha's Vineyard when the eye disappeared.

Otis has radar facilities which permit observers to track the path of the storm and determine its strength.

Rusk-Gromyko Parley Opens

U.S. Sounds Out Reds On Crisis in Berlin

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk opens a series of cold war talks with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today in a delicate and dangerous diplomatic maneuver to find out whether the Soviet Union is interested in a compromise settlement of the Berlin crisis.

The two men scheduled a luncheon conference for the first of a series of discussions expected to continue into next week. Rusk invited Gromyko to the meeting in his suite at a midtown hotel. Several policy advisers on each side also will attend.

Berlin was the central issue of the meeting but aides of both men said there was no doubt they would also discuss the crisis in the United Nations arising from Soviet opposition to appointment of a successor to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Gromyko gave no advance sign of any Soviet yielding on either of the two great problems that have brought the world's two mightiest powers into threatening confrontation.

Rusk was reported in an adamant mood, determined to warn the Soviet government anew of war dangers in the Berlin dispute and of Western fears for the future of the U.N.

Rusk, who took the initiative in setting up the talks, faced the tricky task of sounding out Soviet views on Berlin negotiations without giving Gromyko any impression that the Western Allies are acting from weakness or fear of war. Such an impression, Western diplomats said, would increase the danger of war over Berlin by encouraging a Soviet miscalculation of Western intentions.

Rusk was reported intent on getting across two points to Gromyko: First, the Western powers will not consider negotiating away their West Berlin rights or tolerate interference with their access to the city. Second, the Western powers are prepared to negotiate on German problems, including Berlin, though they will not negotiate on the Soviet Union's terms.

Woolly Worms Bring First Sign of Fall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The old western Ohio adage that when the monarch butterflies start to move, the woolly worms won't be far behind, is proving true this season. Within the last week migrating monarchs have begun to drift across Ohio en route to southern and southwestern wintering areas. A few days later, the woolly worms were observed crossing the highways as they do every fall. Both these signs of fall took place despite 90° degree temperatures.

end of Long Island this morning with 100-mile-an-hour winds but the effect on the populous New York area was considered tame. Most serious consequences appeared to be power failures in thousands of homes, flooding of highways, broken windows and signboards.

Esther seemed unlikely to challenge the record of her unnamed sister which swept up the coast just 23 years ago today. That storm took 588 lives and caused $300 million damage.

Preparedness was the watchword in Esther's path. About 700 persons left their homes in the Montauk, N.Y., area, at the eastern tip of Long Island, for emergency shelters or higher ground.

Massachusetts Civil Defense headquarters evacuated 1,000 families from areas in the path of high tides or coastal flooding in Buzzards Bay and Cape Cod.

Fierce winds tore down electric and power lines. The Long Island Lighting Co. in New York said more than 206,000 homes in Suffolk, Nassau and Queens Counties, all on Long Island, were without power. More than 10,000 phones were out. Schools were closed for the day in many communities.

Connecticut escaped the full force of Esther and Gov. John Dempsey said the worst appeared over at mid-morning without serious damage.

He instructed state police and other officials to make facilities available to needy persons in Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

Rhode Island, hit hard in the 1938 hurricane, fared better today. At least 200 persons were evacuated from waterfront homes. Boat owners had two days of warning to get their craft secured or out of water. But five foot seas in Narragansett Bay washed about a half dozen skiffs ashore.

Nantucket Islanders, who grimly battered everything down Wednesday when informed the eye of the hurricane might pass over the island, reported that up to mid-morning the blow had fallen far short of the 60-65-mile gales to which islanders are accustomed.

Highest velocity measured was a 48-mile gust. Sustained north-northeast winds were 28 to 38 miles an hour at the time the Nantucket Weather Bureau radar tracking station reported the eye of the hurricane 50 miles south-east of Block Island, R.I.

The expected rise of five to nine feet in the forenoon tide failed to reach that high at Nantucket. Only eight of some 40 families heeded warnings to leave the waterfront area.

More than an inch and a half of rain fell at Boston in little more than eight hours, and the Weather Bureau predicted three to four inches.

Voter Registration Closes Wednesday

Voter registration for the Nov. 7 general election will close at 9 p. m. next Wednesday it was announced today.

Persons must be registered to be eligible to cast a ballot in Pickaway County. If a voter has changed his address or name since the last registration or has moved into the county, he should register at the county Board of Elections office in the Courthouse basement.

There have been 95 new registrations recorded by Election personnel since April.

Special office hours will be in effect at the board headquarters Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The office will remain open from 7 to 9 p. m. on those days in addition to regular hours to assist late registrants.

The two men scheduled a luncheon conference for the first of a series of discussions expected to continue into next week. Rusk invited Gromyko to the meeting in his suite at a midtown hotel. Several policy advisers on each side also will attend.

Berlin was the central issue of the meeting but aides of both men said there was no doubt they would also discuss the crisis in the United Nations arising from Soviet opposition to appointment of a successor to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Gromyko gave no advance sign of any Soviet yielding on either of the two great problems that have brought the world's two mightiest powers into threatening confrontation.

Rusk was reported in an adamant mood, determined to warn the Soviet government anew of war dangers in the Berlin dispute and of Western fears for the future of the U.N.

Rusk, who took the initiative in setting up the talks, faced the tricky task of sounding out Soviet views on Berlin negotiations without giving Gromyko any impression that the Western Allies are acting from weakness or fear of war. Such an impression, Western diplomats said, would increase the danger of war over Berlin by encouraging a Soviet miscalculation of Western intentions.

Rusk was reported intent on getting across two points to Gromyko: First, the Western powers will not consider negotiating away their West Berlin rights or tolerate interference with their access to the city. Second, the Western powers are prepared to negotiate on German problems, including Berlin, though they will not negotiate on the Soviet Union's terms.

Woolly Worms Bring First Sign of Fall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The old western Ohio adage that when the monarch butterflies start to move, the woolly worms won't be far behind, is proving true this season. Within the last week migrating monarchs have begun to drift across Ohio en route to southern and southwestern wintering areas. A few days later, the woolly worms were observed crossing the highways as they do every fall. Both these signs of fall took place despite 90-degree temperature.

County Red Cross Chapter Is Aided by Community Fund

Six agencies receive major aid from the Pickaway County Community Fund. They are the American Red Cross, the Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Pickaway County and Circleville Well-Child Clinic and the Youth Center.

In an effort to promote "Know Your Community Fund", local campaign officials have compiled a list of services conducted here each year by these agencies. Today's article covers Red Cross activity.

A local function of the Red Cross is to help men and women in the armed forces, their families and veterans and their families to meet personal and other problems. This chapter also answers community needs in the fields of first aid and water safety training, nursing service, blood program, disaster service and volunteer services.

Every Red Cross chapter is required to perform home service, the act of providing services to personnel in the armed forces and their families. In 1960-61, the Pickaway County Chapter served 108 families, many of them several times.

FIVE classes in first aid were held here, with 74 persons receiving certificates. At present there are 14 authorized instructors. Approximately 700 children and adults received instruction in swimming and life saving at the Circleville and Ashville pools.

During 1960 the Bloodmobile visited Circleville eight times and Ashville and Williamsport once, receiving a total of 1,050 pints of blood. The chapter here is responsible for the total blood needs of all residents of Pickaway County, at no cost to the recipient.

Pickaway County residents used 630 pints of blood during 1960. If required to pay at the rate of $25 per pint, it would have cost them $15,750. Total cost to the chapter was $2,956.68.

A group of registered nurses has received training as instructors in home nursing. They are now available to teach classes.

Through membership in the Central Buckeye Council and with the cooperation of many local organizations, the Pickaway County Chapter has made many contributions to Veterans Administration Hospitals.

The Red Cross Board of Directors here is composed of one representative from each township, 10 from the city and the chairmen of the various services.

Auto Issues Set Pace for Stock Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to rebound in moderate trading early this afternoon. Autos were pacemakers.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .60 at 253.00 with industrials up 1.60, rails up .20 and utilities off .10. Gains of fractions to a point or more prevailed among most key stocks.

News of the labor settlement at General Motors continued to inspire buying of auto stocks and other industrials.

Steels followed along more moderately. Building material issues posted some sharp gains. Aircrafts, oils, utilities and non-ferrous metals were mixed. Tobacco, airlines, drugs, rubbers and mail order-retails were a little higher.

Gillette bounded ahead half a dozen points on word of proposals for a 3-for-1 stock split and a dividend boost.

Honolulu Oil recovered more than 3 points of Wednesday's 15-point loss on antitrust news.

Ford was up more than a point. GM was up close to a point and Chrysler a fraction. American Motors and Studebaker-Packard continued heavily traded, each adding a fraction.

Johns-Manville and U. S. Gypsum advanced more than a point.

Also advancing more than a point were Firestone, Magnavox Air Reduction and Montgomery Ward.

Du Pont was up a couple of points. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.34 at 709.66.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange moved generally higher in light trading.

Corporate bonds were mostly steady. Long-term U. S. government bonds advanced.

Red Cross Aid To Be Given At VA Hospital

Mrs. Boyd Stout, Mrs. Lewis Dean and Mrs. Roloff Wolford attended a meeting of Central Buckeye Red Cross Council Wednesday in the Presbyterian Church in Worthington.

The Council is the volunteer agency of the American Red Cross which provides the opportunity for community groups and organizations to furnish supplies and services for the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Chillicothe.

Plans were completed for operation of the Christmas gift store December 6 and 7, at which time all patients will be permitted to select gifts for members of their families. The gifts are provided, wrapped and mailed at no cost to the patient. The shop is operated through the cooperation of all agencies doing volunteer work at the hospital.

About 6,000 gifts are needed each year. The Pickaway County Chapter will provide 200 gifts, ten dollars for postage and a group of ladies to help with the work of operating the store.

THE LOCAL chapter is also providing 150 birthday gift packages which are presented to the patients on their individual birthdays.

The next orientation dates for Gray Ladies to serve at the hospital will be October 16, 23 and 30. Mrs. Dean is a Gray Lady who works at the hospital each Wednesday.

Local groups or individuals who wish to participate in the work of the Buckeye Council are invited to do so and may contact Mrs. Stout who is chairman of volunteers or Mrs. Wolford, executive secretary at the chapter house, 167 Watt Street.

Pickaway County's Chapter will serve as host for the next council meeting Nov. 15.

Lions Hear Review Of Sight Programs

Dr. D. S. Goldschmidt led an interesting and informative discussion on sight deficiencies and corrective measures at a meeting of the Circleville Lions Club Tuesday night.

The Lions, who sponsor an extensive sight - saving program, heard an explanation of the sight screening instrument used by the Club in local schools. Dr. Goldschmidt told the members the device was for preliminary sight screening tests. It does not replace a detailed eye examination, he noted.

James Peters, Lion president, offered a statement of appreciation on behalf of the club for the work performed by local optometrists in cooperation with the club's sight projects.

Guests for the session were Robert I. Elsea and Forrest Thomsen.

Auto Unions Council Accepts New General Motors Pact

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers General Motors Council today bowed to the union's international executive board and voted unanimously to accept all terms of the UAW-GM contract agreement.

The council, which had voted rejection of local-issue term settlements Wednesday night, voted complete approval of the new three-year contract after a 45 minute meeting.

UAW President Walter Reuther, addressing this morning's meeting, told the 280-member council, "We want you to act like you are a member of a Democratic union, otherwise you have chaos."

Today's quick council acceptance of the GM-UAW agreement ended an internal battle over approval of the new contract covering 350,000 GM workers and paved the way for resumption of full production at 129 GM plants.

Reuther said all UAW locals who have already settled have been ordered to report to work and "most of them are working."

At a news conference, Reuther explained what he called a new approach on the part of both General Motors and the union toward settlement of 24 local plant strikes.

He said that shop committees from these locals will meet in Detroit starting Friday with officials of the company and international representatives of the union.

Reuther called this a sensible and realistic approach and said "we hope we can work quickly toward complete settlement of all these problems."

Reuther lashed out at local officers of GM's key West Mifflin, Pa., plant. The Pittsburgh area plant had voiced strong objection to acceptance of local-level settlements. A strike there has tied up other GM plants.

Calling on local leadership to accept the council and international board action, Reuther said he hoped the West Mifflin local officers "...will come to us. If they don't we will have to go to the membership."

"We're going to brush aside those who say they are bigger than we are," Reuther added. "No one is trying to sell them down the river."

U.S., Soviet

United States is determined to block the Soviet demand that the United Nations recognize Peiping as rightful holder of the seat now occupied by Nationalist China.

The U.S. delegation announced support for a New Zealand proposal to debate the over-all question of who should represent China. And the U.S. or one of its allies is expected to move for creation of a special committee to study the issue and report back to the assembly next year.

Aware that this would have the same effect as shelving the issue, the Communists are certain to fight the maneuver. But delegates believe the study plan will get majority support.

In the hunt for a new secretary-general, the Soviet Union killed hopes of East-West agreement by turning down a widely supported plan to name a representative of a nonaligned nation as interim successor until a permanent secretary-general can be agreed upon.

The Soviets insisted they would settle only for Premier Khrushchev's troika plan—a three-man board representing the Western, Communist and neutral nations, each with veto power.

The Western powers are certain such a setup would paralyze the United Nations. They were reported determined to press for a one-man authority, even if it means naming an interim chief who would not be recognized by the Soviets.

GI Deferment Chance Poor

Pentagon Gives Data To Guards, Reserves

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you've been called to active duty as a reservist or National Guardsman your chance of getting a deferment now isn't very good.

This is what the Pentagon is telling a growing number of anxious men calling for information on deferments.

Except for extreme hardship cases—and these must be documented—it appears few men are likely to stay behind when their units muster starting in a few days.

The grounds for deferment have been laid down by the Defense Department and are generally common to reserve components of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Officers noted that even when no call is imminent, reserve and guard elements are supposed to screen personnel as to whether they should be moved back to the standby reserve, which is not subject to call except in a dire national emergency.

Thus, the officers said, a reservist who holds a critical job or a student who plans to attend college should by this time have taken steps to get out of the ready reserve.

Some reservists in this group, the officers said, have been staying in their units and drawing drill pay while taking their chances on not being called up.

The Labor Department lists more than 80 critical occupations—from agronomists to veterinarians—rated as eligible for deferment consideration.

Also among those eligible are college students studying in fields that will qualify them for critical occupations.

Another category takes in men whose callup would result in "extreme personal or community hardship." Enlisted men having four or more dependents normally would be considered as meeting the hardship qualification, the regulations say.

Episcopalians OK Study of Merger Plan

DETROIT (AP)—After putting new steam into a move for Christian reunion, the legislative machinery of the Episcopal Church today ground to a halt—for a look at some other kinds of machinery.

Nearly 1,000 representatives of the church from across the country—bishops, pastors, theologians and lay delegates—headed into the whirling labyrinth of Detroit's industrial empire.

Their purpose: To hunt clues on how the church can break out of its parochial walls into the mass—organized, mechanized world that has engulfed much of modern American life.

The tour came after the House of Bishops Wednesday swept through a dramatic measure aimed at uniting a wide range of American churches, including at least four other denominations.

It calls for talks with United Presbyterians, Methodists, the United Church of Christ, the Polish National Catholic Church and possibly others to "explore the possibilities of an eventual united church, truly catholic, truly reformed and truly evangelical."

Altogether, the denominations have about 20 million members.

Crises in U.N. Bewilder Layman

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—If statesmen are stumped by threats of war and cascades of crises crashing down on this temple to peace, the world's ordinary citizens by now must be wholly bewildered.

The cold war has reached eerie heights of fantasy. Things happening daily seem to defy all logic. As Alice remarked in a happier Wonderland, things are getting curiously and curiously.

Just as an example, within a few hours there were these developments:

Item: Premier Khrushchev cited the words of Pope John XXIII as support for arguments put forward by atheistic communism.

Item: The U.S.S.R., Washington announced, set off its 14th nuclear blast in the atmosphere since Sept. 1. The Kremlin bitterly criticized the United States as a menace to peace for testing nuclear devices underground.

Item: The United States and the Soviet Union agreed in principle it would be a good idea to eliminate all nuclear weapons—all armies, for that matter. But they couldn't agree on how to get started talking about it.

Item: The U.N. was unable to find a way to name a new chief executive officer to replace Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, killed in Africa trying to restore peace in a new nation torn by pressures of a world political war.

Premier Khrushchev talks almost incessantly about peace. And he boasts that Soviet armed forces will have a bomb with the force of 100 million tons of TNT, enough to blow a country off the map if it offends him.

And in Communist North Viet Nam, a radio commentary happily labels that pretty weapon "the peace bomb."

War, claims the Kremlin, no

longer is inevitable.

And, invariably in the same breath it claims war is just around the corner because the imperialists, principally the United States, "have insane plans for war against the Soviet Union."

Kennedy Plans Less Secrecy In Government

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has set up a system for automatically taking the secrecy wraps off a considerable amount of classified government material.

Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., who along with newspaper editor groups has frequently criticized excessive governmental secrecy, said the action Wednesday was "a major improvement in the information protection system."

Moss, chairman of the House Information subcommittee, and newspaper groups have protested that classified labels sometimes are used by government officials that should be made public.

He said the system was recommended by his group three years ago and supported by the American Society of Newspaper Editors and Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society.

The executive order provides for downgrading the secrecy classification of documents at regular intervals, or sooner if officials decide they no longer need special protection.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the details of the system were worked out by an interdepartmental committee on internal security after a long study of government classification methods.

1962 Program For Wheat Growers Set

The Pickaway County ASC office today announced detailed information for all growers planning to participate in the 1962 Wheat Stabilization Program.

Spokesmen said in order to participate all growers must make application and divert at least 10 per cent in order to be eligible for price support.

Regulations governing diverted acres, as listed by the Pickaway ASC Committee, are:

Accepted diverted acres — 1. A minimum of five acres or the necessary diversion, whichever is smaller; 2. Whole fields, or not more than one tract within a permanent field boundary except established strips; 3. If in established strips, only whole strips shall be diverted unless the required diverted area is smaller; 4. Areas shall be at least one chain in width unless the needed area can be obtained in less width on one side or end of the field. An established strip of less than one chain in width will be accepted.

UNACCEPTED diverted acres— 1. Irregular low lying areas or doughty knobs or banks, except when part of a whole field; 2. An area around the perimeter of a whole field (this is an area which ordinarily would not be seeded or planted to a crop).

According to the ASC committee, a change has been made in eligible deductions around the perimeter or a field which might affect seeding patterns. Eligible deductions around the perimeter must be nine links or more wide and contain at least .1 of an acre.

GI Deferment Chance Poor

Pentagon Gives Data To Guards, Reserves

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you've been called to active duty as a reservist or National Guardsman your chance of getting a deferment now isn't very good.

This is what the Pentagon is telling a growing number of anxious men calling for information on deferments.

Except for extreme hardship cases—and these must be documented—it appears few men are likely to stay behind when their units muster starting in a few days.

The grounds for deferment have been laid down by the Defense Department and are generally common to reserve components of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Officers noted that even when no callup is imminent, reserve and guard elements are supposed to screen personnel as to whether they should be moved back to the standby reserve, which is not subject to call except in a dire national emergency.

Thus, the officers said, a reservist who holds a critical job or a student who plans to attend college should by this time have taken steps to get out of the ready reserve.

Some reservists in this group, the officers said, have been staying in their units and drawing drill pay while taking their chances on not being called up.

The Labor Department lists more than 80 critical occupations—from agronomists to veterinarians—rated as eligible for deferment consideration.

Also among those eligible are college students studying in fields that will qualify them for critical occupations.

Another category takes in men whose callup would result in "extreme personal or community hardship." Enlisted men having four or more dependents normally would be considered as meeting the hardship qualification, the regulations say.

Episcopalians OK Study of Merger Plan

DETROIT (AP)—After putting new steam into a move for Christian reunion, the legislative machinery of the Episcopal Church today ground to a halt—for a look at some other kinds of machinery.

Nearly 1,000 representatives of the church from across the country—bishops, pastors, theologians and lay delegates—headed into the whirling labyrinth of Detroit's industrial empire.

Their purpose: To hunt clues on how the church can break out of its parochial walls into the mass — organized, mechanized world that has engulfed much of modern American life.

The tour came after the House of Bishops Wednesday swept through a dramatic measure aimed at uniting a wide range of American churches, including at least four other denominations.

It calls for talks with United Presbyterians, Methodists, the United Church of Christ, the Polish National Catholic Church and possibly others to "explore the possibilities of an eventual united church, truly catholic, truly reformed and truly evangelical."

Altogether, the denominations have about 20 million members.

Crises in U.N. Bewilder Layman

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—If statesmen are stumped by threats of war and cascades of crises crashing down on this temple to peace, the world's ordinary citizens by now must be wholly bewildered.

The cold war has reached eerie heights of fantasy. Things happening daily seem to defy all logic. As Alice remarked in a happier Wonderland, things are getting curiously and curiously.

Just as an example, within a few hours there were these developments:

Item: Premier Khrushchev cited the words of Pope John XXIII as support for arguments put forward by atheistic communism.

Item: The U.S.S.R., Washington announced, set off its 14th nuclear blast in the atmosphere since Sept. 1. The Kremlin bitterly criticized the United States as a menace to peace for testing nuclear devices underground.

Item: The United States and the Soviet Union agreed in principle it would be a good idea to eliminate all nuclear weapons—all armies, for that matter. But they couldn't agree on how to get started talking about it.

Item: The U.N. was unable to find a way to name a new chief executive officer to replace Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, killed in Africa trying to restore peace in a new nation torn by pressures of a world political war.

Premier Khrushchev talks almost incessantly about peace. And he boasts that Soviet armed forces will have a bomb with the force of 100 million tons of TNT, enough to blow a country off the map if it offends him.

And in Communist North Viet Nam, a radio commentary happily labels that pretty weapon "the peace bomb."

War, claims the Kremlin, no

longer is inevitable.

And, invariably in the same breath it claims war is just around the corner because the imperialists, principally the United States, "have insane plans for war against the Soviet Union."

Kennedy Plans Less Secrecy In Government

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has set up a system for automatically taking the secrecy wraps off a considerable amount of classified government material.

No Tranquility for U.N.

If the 1961 session of the United Nations General Assembly turns out to be a real barn-burner, it will be living up to expectations.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev told U. S. disarmament chief John J. McCloy that he did not plan to attend. But this decision could be changed, with the red dictator striding in dramatically, shoe held aloft.

Other chiefs of state likely will be on hand, however. These include such persons as India's Nehru, Indonesia's Sukarno, Yugoslavia's Tito and United Arab Republic's Nasser. The expectation is that they enjoyed the session last year so much they'll be back.

Probably major East-West controversy will await the results of the communist party congress in October. Much of what the Soviet Union does will depend upon its outcome. If Khrushchev wins a smashing victory there over the neo-Stalinists and red Chinese, he may turn mild and agreeable; if not, anything can happen and probably will.

In any event, this will not be a tranquil autumn along the East River.

Office Picnic Practice Grows

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that office Christmas parties have fallen into some disrepute, many thoughtful corporations are filling this gap in the starved lives of their employees with summer picnics.

The annual office picnic is a prolonged coffee break that has many advantages over Christmas parties for the sponsoring firm:

Such as:

It isn't held on company time or company premises, so no employee can fall off a company desk and sue the organization for damages;

Wives are invited;

Even though the picnic is held as late as August or September, the most wayward hired hand feels a compulsion to report again for duty before the first of the new year; and

Since it isn't the Santa Claus season, the employees can't very well ask, "Where's the bonus?"

Therefore, it is easy to understand why more and more of America's giant industrial firms are choosing to leave the celebration of Christmas to the sanctity of the home and pepping up employee morale with an office picnic.

If you have ever been to an office picnic, you might recognize the following characters:

Doubtful Donald—He is sure the hot dogs are reconditioned leftovers from unsuccessful 1960 county fairs, and the company bought them at half price.

Helpful Harry—"My gosh, it isn't fair for the firm to do everything for us—we ought to do our bit, too," he says. He proudly unloads his contribution—35 cents worth of potato salad—and spends the rest of the day dreaming about when his loyalty will get him a $10 a week rise in pay.

Poor-Mouth Monty—He chokes on gratitude. As he reaches for his first (and his 10th) piece of chicken, he murmurs brokenly, "Only in America, only in America, could you find a company that would give—where's the white meat? Who took all the white meat?"

Athletic Abner—He sat on the second-string bench in high school but at the office picnic he's strictly varsity. "Let's play baseball, let's play football," he urges. But he's a good sport. He doesn't mind limping home with a broken bone—so long as everyone else does.

Gracious Gertrude—It seems only patriotic to the sultry stenographer that she should go behind the nearest sand dune and listen to each office husband explain why his wife doesn't understand him.

Practical Pete—He's the shop steward. "We already run out of mustard," he remarks. "This could be a grievance case."

Penny-pinching Penelope—"I'm not hungry," she says fastidiously. "But if there are any leftovers I'd like to take them home to our dog." She wraps up enough choice food to provide her husband with free lunches for three weeks.

Ambitious Albert—Beer in hand, he fixes the boss with foamy eyes and for five straight hours tells him, "Now if I were running the business, I'd—"

The picnic ends at dusk. The employees roll homeward on wheels of good cheer. As a point of honor and good faith, they all show up on time the next morning, eager as ever to avoid work.

All except the boss. After the annual office picnic, he feels the need of a long, well-earned rest in Bermuda.

Strange Conservative Sounds

By George Sokolsky

These days one hears much about Conservatism that sounds strange to the ears of an old Conservative. Just as a Conservative would not submit to the authoritarianism of the Communists, so he will not submit to the pressures of any particular group of Conservatives who demand monolithic principles.

Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, a consistent Conservative, each year holds a picnic in his apple orchard at Berryville, Virginia. On that occasion, he usually delivers an address. This year's address was devoted to his concept of political Conservatism.

It seems as though Senator Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, a Liberal, has said that Senator Byrd should be purged as Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee because the Virginian would not support the platform written by Chester Bowles and adopted by the Democratic Convention.

Senator Byrd replied to this: "In reply I stated publicly that I was unalterably opposed to nearly everything in the platform; that I intended to fight everything inimical to the best interest of this country, in or out of the platform."

form and that I challenged him to take his fight to the Senate floor. "I said, as a member of the Senate, my first allegiance was to the people of Virginia, and I recognized no outside control over my vote. The Virginia delegation to the Convention opposed the platform."

This is a correct position. The Constitution holds that each state should be represented in the Senate by two Senators. A Senator therefore represents his state and is obligated to the people of his state. Such liberals as Senators Clark and Javits do not regard themselves as representatives of their states but as national officials which they are not under our system of government. It is difficult for the liberals to fit themselves into our constitutional system because they believe that not the rule of law should prevail but the rule of reason. The question then arises: Whose reason?

Senator Clark took the issue to the Senate floor and he got one vote—his own.

In these days of political opportunism and confusion, it is satisfying to read a defense of the American system of government without any apology for it and without any attempt to find a compromise with some Marxian concept or some attempt to discover a new system of law and life. This nation is constitutionally a confederation of sovereign states. The trend in recent years has been to forget the Federalistic character of our political system and to assume that the government in Washington possesses inherent rights. It does not. It possesses delegated and designated authorities, obligation and limitations, carefully stipulated in the Constitution and in the amendments thereto.

Senator Byrd defines Conservatism as follows: "Conservatism . . . means to accept responsibility for preserving and protecting our basic principles and institutions while exercising the privilege of using and developing them."

"What are these basic principles? There are others, but foremost I list States Rights, and the independence of the three separate but coordinate branches of government. This combination provides the check and the balance to insure against concentration of power which, by experience, we have learned to fear."

"These, and others, are the principles on which we achieved our liberty and our freedom for the pursuit of happiness. They are the base of our greatness."

It would be interesting to see this statement of American idealism contested. This is no conclusion of a reactionary who fails to recognize the need for human progress or the value of orderly progress of law. Reactionaries are not Conservatives, because they exclude development and growth from their program. They desire what once was to be eternal. Senator Byrd makes the distinction: "Virginians are not reactionaries. We do not turn back the hands of the clock. We do not necessarily defend the status quo. But neither do we assume that change is progress, but we want sound progress."

This is the wisdom of the experienced idealist. The conservative idealist does not seek to pragmatic method to solve all problems; he believes in fundamental principles and attempts to fit progress within the margins of those principles. The reactionary is quite different; he is opposed to progress in any form and so closes his mind that he never countenances the development of man. The Conservative lives by historic memory; the reactionary lives by taboos and prejudices, by unhistoric tittle-tattle.

"Well, what do YOU want, Perkins? I fired you last year—remember?"

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

LOUIS QUINN knows a big Broadway producer who was convinced he had reduced the fine art of betting on horse races to an exact science. He would sneak out to the beach every morning at sunrise, get down on his hands and knees, and scratch the turf to see if it was hard or soft—wet or dry. He figured this would enable him to pick the horse most apt to find the going good that afternoon.

The producer admits that he hasn't won a race yet this year—but he certainly has the dirtiest fingernails in town!

Editor Howard Smith, of the Miami News, met one girl on the beach who was so stupid he bet an associate she never had finished the eighth grade in elementary school. The associate returned triumphantly to report that the girl could produce a college diploma. "And guess what college she went to," chortled the associate. Bitterly, Smith hazarded, "Barely Normal."

Inside You and Yours

Billy was the only 9-year-old bed-wetter at Camp Omoqua! But many children his age wet the bed.

The doctor had checked Billy for diabetes and kidney trouble. His bladder wasn't irritated. And he wasn't pouring out nervous tension, either!

Billy's bladder hadn't grown up. His playmates could hold themselves until recess. Their bladders had stretched.

Billy's tiny bladder still worked automatically. He could barely make it to the Boys' Room in time—sometimes he didn't!

His parents started a training program. He had to drink and drink all day—water, punch, pop, anything! And he'd hold himself in until near-bursting.

Gradually, his bladder stretched. He wasn't supposed to drink after supper. But who was thirsty? He'd be guzzling all day.

He'd use the bathroom at bedtime and two hours later when Mom woke him up. A cold face wash quickly roused him for the bathroom trip with Mom. As he stayed dry longer, she'd wake him later.

Light bedclothes and tiny bedtime doses of pep pills helped that cold face rinse. And other bedtime medicine calmed his bladder. Sedatives can calm nervous youngsters.

After each dry night, Mom glued a gold star to a chart in Billy's room. Like green stamps, a filled gold-star chart could be traded for a new bicycle—and he'd be trained!

Billy's mother could have prevented his bed-wetting when he was 15 months old. He might have trained himself if he had been placed on his pottychair for a few minutes every two hours. And his bladder would have stretched!

Before you nag your Billy, remember that statistics show that you or your spouse probably had the same trouble!

Guess what? Billy's been riding his new bike around the neighborhood—all excited about going back to Camp Omoqua!

Cost of Living — Whither Bound?

Would Government Help Foul Up Nation's Economy?

EDITOR'S NOTE—Is the economy stagnant and really in need of a helping hand from government? In this, third of four articles on the threat of inflation, Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, discusses the dispute over making more jobs at the risk of triggering another spurt in prices.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—More jobs for more people—more spending money for a higher standard of living—more government spending to spur the economy's growth but without higher tax rates—more industrial output at moderately higher wage scales but at about the same price levels.

And all this without triggering a boom and bust or an unwelcome spurt in the cost of living that could be curbed only by federal controls over prices and wages and production.

Is it possible?

Administration economists say we can achieve the goal with judicious government monetary action and proper labor and management restraint.

Critics of the administration policy call it excessive, unjustified by present conditions, and unlikely to succeed, judged by past experiences.

This dispute cuts deeper than today's headline trading of jobs over whether steel companies can hold the price line or how high auto wages can go without setting a wage-price hiking pattern for other industries.

More basic is whether the economy is growing fast enough, whether unemployment can be licked, whether the government can intervene without its pump priming setting off another round of inflation.

President Kennedy and his Council of Economic Advisers say the economy must grow faster if jobs are to be found for an increasing labor force.

Walter Heller, chairman of the council, says that at the start of the year industry had the capacity to produce 8 per cent more than it actually did. He holds that the gap was due to a failure of demand for goods and services. He urges this demand be stimulated by a combination of easy money and a greater government spending, if that isn't enough, by lower taxes.

Mechanized factories with more efficient production methods would be expected to absorb moderate wage rises without increasing prices. And increased sales volume, even at present profit margins, would be counted upon to keep total earnings high enough.

Opponents challenge this. They deny that the economy is really stagnant. They contend that further government pump priming on top of the current business recovery would just bring on a boom and bust. They fear further inflationary weakening of the market-place value of the dollar, so that higher prices would nullify any apparent gain in wages.

Beyond this dispute two other questions are being asked with increasing frequency.

How much unemployment is to be regarded as normal? Is creeping inflation really bad?

The old goal of minimum unemployment was 2 or 3 per cent of the labor force. That would include the hard core of the unemployed and those in transit from job to job or place to place.

More recently have been added the unskilled for whom there is less demand in a mechanized age, and also those displaced workers whose particular skills have been taken over by machines.

The jobless total is now around 7 per cent of the labor force. President Kennedy has said he hopes his policies will bring this down fairly soon to 4 per cent. But a few economists have been saying, mostly in hushed tones, that maybe our economy will have to learn to live with 6 per cent or so as the norm.

The question about creeping inflation is how much it really hurts. One theory is that prices must creep higher as industry grows enough to make more jobs. Such price rises, the argument goes, won't be nearly as bad as stagnation that would mean increasing unemployment.

No Tranquility for U.N.

If the 1961 session of the United Nations General Assembly turns out to be a real barn-burner, it will be living up to expectations. Soviet Premier Khrushchev told U. S. disarmament chief John J. McCloy that he did not plan to attend. But this decision could be changed, with the red dictator striding in dramatically, shoe held aloft. Other chiefs of state likely will be on hand, however. These include such persons as India's Nehru, Indonesia's Sukarno, Yugoslavia's Tito and United Arab Republic's Nasser. The expectation is that they enjoyed the session last year so much they'll be back. Probably major East-West controversy will await the results of the communist party congress in October. Much of what the Soviet Union does will depend upon its outcome. If Khrushchev wins a smashing victory there over the neo-Stalinists and red Chinese, he may turn mild and agreeable; if not, anything can happen and probably will. In any event, this will not be a tranquil autumn along the East River.

Office Picnic Practice Grows

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that office Christmas parties have fallen into some disrepute, many thoughtful corporations are filling this gap in the starved lives of their employees with summer picnics. The annual office picnic is a prolonged coffee break that has many advantages over Christmas parties for the sponsoring firm: Such as: It isn't held on company time or company premises, so no employee can fall off a company desk and sue the organization for damages; Wives are invited; Even though the picnic is held as late as August or September, the most wary hired hand feels a compulsion to report again for duty before the first of the new year; and Since it isn't the Santa Claus season, the employees can't very well ask, "Where's the bonus?" Therefore, it is easy to understand why more and more of America's giant industrial firms are choosing to leave the celebration of Christmas to the sanctity of the home and pepping up employee morale with an office picnic. It you have ever been to an office picnic, you might recognize the following characters: Doubtful Donald—He is sure the hot dogs are reconditioned leftovers from unsuccessful 1960 county fairs, and the company bought them at half price. Helpful Harry—"My gosh, it isn't fair for the firm to do everything for us—we ought to do our bit, too," he says. He proudly unloads his contribution—35 cents worth of potato salad—and spends the rest of the day dreaming about when his loyalty will get him a $10 a week rise in pay. Poor-Mouth Monty—He chokes on gratitude. As he reaches for his first (and his 10th) piece of chicken, he murmurs brokenly, "Only in America, only in America, could you find a company that would give—where's the white meat? Who took all the white meat?" Athletic Abner—He sat on the second-string bench in high school but at the office picnic he's strictly varsity. "Let's play baseball, let's play football," he urges. But he's a good sport. He doesn't mind limping home with a broken bone—so long as everyone else does. Gracious Gertrude—It seems only patriotic to the sultry stenographer that she should go behind the nearest sand dune and listen to each office husband explain why his wife doesn't understand him. Practical Pete—He's the shop steward. "We already run out of mustard," he remarks. "This could be a grievance case." Penny-pinching Penelope—"I'm not hungry," she says fastidiously. "But if there are any leftovers I'd like to take them home to our dog." She wraps up enough choice food to provide her husband with free lunches for three weeks. Ambitious Albert—Beer in hand, he fixes the boss with foamy eyes and for five straight hours tells him, "Now if I were running the business, I'd—." The picnic ends at dusk. The employees roll homeward on wheels of good cheer. As a point of honor and good faith, they all show up on time the next morning, eager as ever to avoid work. All except the boss. After the annual office picnic, he feels the need of a long, well-earned rest in Bermuda.

Strange Conservative Sounds

These days one hears much about Conservatism that sounds strange to the ears of an old Conservative. Just as a Conservative would not submit to the authoritarianism of the Communists, so he will not submit to the pressures of any particular group of Conservatives who demand monolithic principles. Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, a consistent Conservative, each year holds a picnic in his apple orchard at Berryville, Virginia. On that occasion, he usually delivers an address. This year's address was devoted to his concept of political Conservatism. It seems as though Senator Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, a Liberal, has said that Senator Byrd should be purged as Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee because the Virginian would not support the platform written by Chester Bowles and adopted by the Democratic Convention. Senator Byrd replied to this: "In reply I stated publicly that I was unalterably opposed to nearly everything in the platform; that I intended to fight everything inimical to the best interest of this Country, in or out of the platform and that I challenged him to take his fight to the Senate floor. "I said, as a member of the Senate, my first allegiance was to the people of Virginia, and I recognized no outside control over my vote. The Virginia delegation to the Convention opposed the platform." This is a correct position. The Constitution holds that each state should be represented in the Senate by two Senators. A Senator therefore represents his state and is obligated to the people of his state. Such liberals as Senators Clark and Javits do not regard themselves as representatives of their states but as national officials which they are not under our system of government. It is difficult for the liberals to fit themselves into our constitutional system because they believe that not the rule of law should prevail but the rule of reason. The question then arises: Whose reason? Senator Clark took the issue to the Senate floor and he got one vote—his own. In these days of political opportunism and confusion, it is satisfying to read a defense of the American system of government without any apology for it and without any attempt to find a compromise with some Marxian concept or some attempt to discover a new system of law and life. This nation is constitutionally a confederation of sovereign states. The trend in recent years has been to forget the Federalistic characteristic of our political system and to assume that the government in Washington possesses inherent rights. It does not. It possesses delegated and designated authorities, obligation and limitations, carefully stipulated in the Constitution and in the amendments thereto. Senator Byrd defines Conservatism as follows: "Conservatism . . . means to accept responsibility for preserving and protecting our basic principles and institutions while exercising the privilege of using and developing them. "What are these basic principles? There are others, but foremost I list States Rights, and the independence of the three separate but coordinate branches of government. This combination provides the check and the balance to insure against concentration of power which, by experience, we have learned to fear. "These, and others, are the principles on which we achieved our liberty and our freedom for the pursuit of happiness. They are the base of our greatness." It would be interesting to see this statement of American idealism contested. This is no conclusion of a reactionary who fails to recognize the need for human progress or the value of orderly process of law. Reactionaries are not Conservatives, because they exclude development and growth from their program. They desire what once was to be eternal. Senator Byrd makes the distinction: "Virginians are not reactionaries. We do not turn back the hands of the clock. We do not necessarily defend the status quo. But neither do we assume that change is progress, but we want sound progress." This is the wisdom of the experienced idealist. The conservative idealist does not seek to pragmatic method to solve all problems; he believes in fundamental principles and attempts to fit progress within the margins of those principles. The reactionary is quite different; he is opposed to progress in any form and so closes his mind that he never countenances the development of man. The Conservative lives by historic memory; the reactionary lives by taboos and prejudices, by unhistoric tittle-tattle.

LOUIS QUINN knows a big Broadway producer who was convinced he had reduced the fine art of betting on horse races to an exact science. He would sneak out to the track every morning at sunrise, get down on his hands and knees, and scratch the turf to see if it was hard or soft—wet or dry. He figured this would enable him to pick the horse most apt to find the going good that afternoon.

The producer admits that he hasn't won a race yet this year—but he certainly has the dirtiest fingernails in town!

Editor Howard Smith, of the Miami News, met one girl on the beach who was so stupid he bet an associate she never had finished the eighth grade in elementary school. The associate returned triumphantly to report that the girl could produce a college diploma. "And guess what college she went to," chortled the associate. Bitterly, Smith hazarded, "Barely Normal."

Newark Pay Kickbacks Net 3 Dismissals

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Mayor Richard V. Fortune ordered the dismissal Wednesday of John (Pete) Helphrey, buildings and grounds superintendent, and two other city employees after an investigation of alleged payroll padding and kickbacks.

The others fired are Charles Feka, a timekeeper, and Richard Hartman, an hourly employee.

The mayor said Hartman's dismissal had no direct connection with the matters under investigation.

Mayor Fortune suspended 10 employees after a hearing Tuesday. It appeared the other seven will be restored to duty.

The hearing, the suspensions and the subsequent dismissal followed disclosure by the county grand jury that it was investigating alleged irregularities in the city paint shop and parks department. The grand jury is in recess, but will resume its work next week.

Both Helphrey and Feka denied charges by five of the 10 employees at Tuesday's hearing that kickbacks had been made to Helphrey in the last six months. The five testified their pay was padded and, after each payday, were told by Feka how much they owed Helphrey. The employees said they kept none of the money.

NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned, the Auditor of the County of Pickaway, Ohio, herein referred to as the County, at his office in the County Court House, Circleville, Ohio, until 11:00 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, on the 2nd day of October, 1961, at which time the bids will be publicly opened and read, for the purchase of bonds of the County in the aggregate amount of $45,000.00, authorized by resolution passed September 5, 1961.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—While the rest of the world concentrates on manned missiles, Ohio State University's School of Aviation is spending a month improving the skills of fliers who work three feet off the ground.

It's the school's second annual Aerial Applicator Short Course, a $1,200 torment of classroom and flying tests for the already highly skilled pilots who scorn the wild blue yonder for the hedge-hopping life of a crop-duster.

They gather from all over the nation and from as far as Ecuador for the knowledge and the polishing of skills which will further stabilize their industry and erase from the minds of Federal Aviation Agency agents the last vestige of the idea that crop dusters are just a bunch of irresponsible daredevils.

Anyone who harbors a notion these low-level fliers are screwballs—rather than precision technicians—should come over here on the hangar apron and talk with 42-year-old Paul E. Hurshof Amana, Iowa, president of his state's oldest agricultural airplane operation. He's one of the instructors with a background of 15 years and more than 10,000 flying hours in the business. A big man with graying hair and steel-rimmed spectacles, he might be mistaken for a professor were it not for his wind-burned face.

Does he have a family? With his usual serious look, but with a twinkle in his blue eyes, he replies:

"Sure, two boys and girl. I'm normal about everything but this"—waving a stout arm at a half-dozen aerial applicator craft.

"You've managed upward of 10,000 hours without an accident," you observe. "What would you say is the most frequent cause of accidents in your business?"

"Youngsters who have little or no respect for the equipment they use."

"But," you point out, "you were pretty much a youngster when you started out."

"That's right, comes the tart reply, "but I wrote the check for the airplane."

The airplane he's talking about is a modified Stearman biplane, originally built as an Army trainer early in World War II. All Hurshof needs as he heaves himself into the open cockpit is a flowing silk scarf and he would almost exactly match anyone's mental image of a World War I fighter pilot.

But with all due respect to the men of the Lafayette Escadrille, this pilot and his biplane are in a different class.

Lets hop in the rear cockpit for a simulated dusting run, shoulder harnesses, hard hats and clear plastic face visors in place.

A 40-yard burst of power and Hurshof plucks the little ship off the runway and starts to circle toward a little demonstration field almost before he is airborne. You snap up your face visor, or just to get the "feel of the experience. The cold air bites, clutches and tears at your face and you quickly lower the protective shield.

We're scooting toward the practice plot at perhaps 100 feet and you begin to worry that something might be wrong, but Hurshof explains later: "In this business, unnecessary altitude is a waste."

New Type Nuclear Test In Russia Is Hinted

TOKYO (AP)—A university professor in Niigata, 180 miles northwest of Tokyo, said the Soviet Union may have detonated a new type of nuclear bomb in its current test series.

Prof. Seitaro Kiyama of the science faculty said the presumption is based on the fact that uranium 238, found in nuclear bombs before, was not detected in "hot" rain that fell over Niigata last weekend, the newspaper Yomiuri reported.

Painesville Jury Finds No Immorality in Jail

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—The special Lake County grand jury reported it "found no reliable or substantial evidence to sustain charges of immorality or immoral conduct in Lake County Jail."

The jury had questioned Sheriff Edwin Cunningham, his deputies and several former inmates of the jail concerning allegations of nude dancing by women prisoners.

The accusations were made by 19-year-old Mrs. Ruth Ann Hyde Lee, a former inmate.

of time and fuel.

He gestures ahead to what seems a tiny field, less than a quarter-mile long, a fence at one end and an imposing, angling row of trees at the other.

Before you know it, we've hopped the fence and are roaring straight down the field. For about three seconds you look the bugs in the eye from a range of feet, but then you become acutely conscious of that line of trees about 40 feet tall.

The next three seconds are spent in pleasant anticipation of an expert pull-out by an expert pilot. The net second is a busy one. You become convinced Hurshof has gone stone blind. Your memory tells you your insurance premiums are paid, you close your eyes resignedly and say to yourself: "Well, here goes nothing."

Suddenly a mighty force seems to sock you in the seat of the pants, lifting, lifting, lifting... and the trees are far behind. Already we are standing on our right wingtip, banking sharply, for another pass at the field.

This time you keep your eyes open. As you pass the treetops, you feel like grabbing a handful of leaves, but the blast of air from the propeller pushes them out of your reach.

(Later you ask: "How close did we come to those trees?"

"About five feet, my planned clearance of all obstacles. You've got to get close enough that the prop wash can blast the dust or spray right down to the edge of the field.)

Hurshof wheels for the obstacle course and far ahead you see a couple of objects which look like croquet wickets flattened on top. They turn out to be two sets of slender poles with breakaway wire strung between about 15 feet above the ground. These simulate utility lines, the No. 1 bug-a-boo of the crop dusters trade.

"Certainly we can get over that thing, you say comfortably as we barre toward the obstacle. But, before you can gulp, we've passed under it and are aimed like a bullet at the second one. The gap looks about half as wide as the wingspread, but, shucks, there must be five feet to spare, on each side.

"I never look at the wire, either here or on the job, the lowan explains later. "I check all the wires in advance and know I have clearance. So I just keep my eye on the ground. If I keep clear of the ground, I'm O. K."

Heading back for the "ranch," Hurshof begins his long approach to the turf airstrip. Twin oaks lie dead ahead, but you assume he will pass far over them. Instead, the Stearman sinks rapidly and heads straight for the trees.

"Watch out!" you shout vainly into the rushing air as the old pro zips neatly between the towering oaks and lands gently a couple hundred yards beyond.

"That's just to show you," Hurshof says gently as you climb shakily to the ground, "the kind of approaches we're sometimes forced to make as a part of our working routine."

While about half of the aerial application work in America now is done by biplanes like the Boeing Stearman, which no longer is being manufactured, the monoplanes are moving into the picture in increasing numbers. They are craft like the Piper Pawnee and the Grumman Ag-Cat which were designed for the job.

Aircraft and chemical companies have granted partial scholarships to help the students attend the grueling course for the betterment of the industry.

The dusters—that's a misnomer since they spray or dust according to the material being applied—constantly are moving into the new fields. They are working, for instance, on 18 test plots of sugar beets near Fremont with three different materials on a test basis.

Last year they flew 1.7 million miles to dump 1.7 billion pounds of material. The acreage covered was roughly equivalent to every square inch of the state of New Jersey.

More than half their work is in insect control in crops, orchards, soil, forests and swamps. They also fight plant diseases.

Weed control is the next biggest job, followed by defoliation, the task of spreading a chemical over crops like cotton and soybeans to knock off the leaves and make the job of mechanical picking easier.

Seeding and fertilization also are important segments in the picture. Rangeland spraying to eliminate brush is becoming increasingly important.

It seems to be pretty well agreed that the first important aerial control of insect infestation was exactly 40 years ago at Troy, Ohio, in a catalpa grove only 20 miles from the famous Wright Brothers bicycle shop in Dayton. A Curtis Super Jenny dispensed 175 pounds of arsenate of lead on the grove in 54 seconds and a later inspection failed to turn up a single tree which hadn't been touched by the poison.

Statistically, the dusters have a much better accident record than other pilots in general aviation, a category which covers everything but commercial and military flying. Their fatal accident rate is .3 for every 10,000 hours flown against 2.8 for general aviation as a whole.

The Ohio State course, men in the industry are beginning to say, is setting a new standard of safety which ultimately will be felt in all corners of the crop dusters' world.

Newark Pay Crop-Dusters Getting Tough Lesson Kickbacks Net In Course Offered at Ohio State 3 Dismissals

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Mayor Richard V. Fortune ordered the dismissal Wednesday of John (Pete) Hephrey, buildings and grounds superintendent, and two other city employees after an investigation of alleged payroll padding and kickbacks.

The others fired are Charles Feka, a timekeeper, and Richard Hartman, an hourly employee.

The mayor said Hartman's dismissal had no direct connection with the matters under investigation.

Mayor Fortune suspended 10 employees after a hearing Tuesday. It appeared the other seven will be restored to duty.

The hearing, the suspensions and the subsequent dismissal followed disclosure by the county grand jury that it was investigating alleged irregularities in the city paint shop and parks departments. The grand jury is in recess, but will resume its work next week.

Both Hephrey and Feka denied charges by five of the 10 employees at Tuesday's hearing that kickbacks had been made to Hephrey in the last six months. The five testified their pay was padded and, after each payday, were told by Feka how much they owed Hephrey. The employees said they kept none of the money.

State WCTU Head Speaks Before County Convention

Mrs. H. H. Brown of Columbus, state WCTU president, was featured speaker for the 71st annual Pickaway County WCTU Convention in Five Points Methodist Church. The Five Points Union directed hostess duties.

Mrs. Brown, addressing the afternoon convention session, reviewed the national WCTU convention held in California and told members of her plans for the state organization during the coming year.

The meeting was called to order by Miss Mary Harpster, county president. After "America" and "The White Ribbon Rally Song" were sung by the delegates, Mrs. Bessie Allen of the Salem Union read devotions and two poems and offered opening prayer.

Routine annual reports were read and approved. Mrs. Brown, at the invitation of Miss Harpster, supervised the election of county officers. Miss Harpster was returned to the president's post.

Mrs. Florence Haughn was elected vice president, Mrs. Opal Hott, recording secretary, Mrs. Mabel Stoer, corresponding secretary, and Miss Alice Weaver treasurer.

After Miss Harpster gave an informative review of the year's county work the "Noontide Song" and a prayer by Mrs. Brown closed the morning session.

Delegates enjoyed a carry-in dinner before they returned to the convention chambers to open the afternoon meeting by singing "What the World Needs Is Jesus" and "Flash Your Light."

Mrs. Ethel Furniss of the Five Points Union was in charge of devotions, using meditations based on the theme "The People Had a Mind to Work." She also offered appropriate prayers.

Mrs. Florence Haughn directed beautiful memorial services. She used white candles to illustrate the theme "Light" and gave scripture readings and poems. Miss Cathy Redman sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Reports were given the assembly by the following county divisional directors: Miss Mary Harpster — periodicals and publicity; Mrs. Florence Haughn — institutions and parliamentary law; Mrs. Ethel Furniss — child welfare; Mrs. Mabel Stoer — Christian citizenship; Mrs. Frances Neff — flower mission and relief; Mrs. Martha Anderson — literature; Mrs. Garnet Porter — natural fruit beverages; Miss Alice Weaver — temperance and missions and temperance education in church schools.

After Miss Cathy Redman sang a solo, it was agreed that the Pickaway County WCTU would handle hostess duties for the 1962 state convention to be held late next year in Columbus.

The convention was adjourned by the singing of the hymn "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and the Aaronic Benediction.

Judge Urges Definitions In Blue Laws

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — A common pleas court judge has ruled Ohio's Sunday closing law constitutional, but he said the legislature—not the courts — must say what activities are allowed or forbidden.

Stark County Judge John Rossetti made the ruling Wednesday in a case in which Harold E. DeHoff, Canton solicitor, sought a declaratory judgment on interpretation of the closing law. DeHoff asked for the judgment to aid him in determining prosecution procedures in alleged violations.

Judge Rossetti said it was not for the court to substitute its judgment for that of the legislative body as to the necessity for the law or its wisdom or logic.

He said in his opinion the law was not aimed at certain businesses, but was a general Sunday closing regulation with reasonable exceptions.

The court does not have the constitutional authority to determine, in the absence of an actual controversy, which activities are permitted or prohibited, he added.

Be Tactful, Child

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 and have a problem. My mother and I disagree about correcting people when they make a mistake in pronouncing words, or use them in the wrong place. My mother says it is wrong to correct your mother or father or any elderly person in private or in front of others.

I said I didn't think there was anything wrong with correcting people in a polite way in private or in front of people. I don't think anybody is ever too old to learn. Who is right?

The pride of older people suffers when they are corrected by children, even if the correction is offered politely and in private (as it should be). State WCTU Head Speaks Before County Convention

Mrs. H. H. Brown of Columbus, state WCTU president, was featured speaker for the 71st annual Pickaway County WCTU Convention in Five Points Methodist Church. The Five Points Union directed hostess duties.

Mrs. Brown, addressing the afternoon convention session, reviewed the national WCTU convention held in California and told members of her plans for the state organization during the coming year. The meeting was called to order by Miss Mary Harpster, county president. After "America" and "The White Ribbon Rally Song" were sung by the delegates, Mrs. Bessie Allen of the Salem Union read devotions and two poems and offered opening prayer.

Routine annual reports were read and approved. Mrs. Brown, at the invitation of Miss Harpster, supervised the election of county officers. Miss Harpster was returned to the president's post.

Mrs. Florence Haughn was elected vice president, Mrs. Opal Hott, recording secretary, Mrs. Mabel Stoer, corresponding secretary, and Miss Alice Weaver treasurer.

After Miss Harpster gave an informative review of the year's county work the "Noontide Song" and a prayer by Mrs. Brown closed the morning session.

Delegates enjoyed a carry-in dinner before they returned to the convention chambers to open the afternoon meeting by singing "What the World Needs Is Jesus" and "Flash Your Light."

Mrs. Ethel Furniss of the Five Points Union was in charge of devotions, using meditations based on the theme "The People Had a Mind to Work." She also offered appropriate prayers.

Mrs. Florence Haughn directed beautiful memorial services. She used white candles to illustrate the theme "Light" and gave scripture readings and poems. Miss Cathy Redman sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Reports were given the assembly by the following county divisional directors: Miss Mary Harpster — periodicals and publicity; Mrs. Florence Haughn — institutions and parliamentary law; Mrs. Ethel Furniss — child welfare; Mrs. Mabel Stoer — Christian citizenship; Mrs. Frances Neff — flower mission and relief; Mrs. Martha Anderson — literature; Mrs. Garnet Porter — natural fruit beverages; Miss Alice Weaver — temperance and missions and temperance education in church schools.

After Miss Cathy Redman sang a solo, it was agreed that the Pickaway County WCTU would handle hostess duties for the 1962 state convention to be held late next year in Columbus.

The convention was adjourned by the singing of the hymn "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and the Aaronic Benediction.

NEW YORK (AP) — As new shows erupt across the television schedule these days a new batch of commercials are coming into sight too.

As far as novelty and fresh approaches to salesmanship are concerned, there seems to be little worth mentioning except a stronger trend this season toward weaving plots into the pitches.

One soft drink company managed to insert the whole boy-meets-girl sequence into its middle commercial the other night, with the principals clutching their beloved bottles instead of each other at the smash windup.

The ladies with the fresh shampoos and home permanents are still swirling their heads in slow motion as they admire themselves in mirrors (an advertising executive told me that the greatest sales discovery since halitosis was slow motion film of swirling heads of hair).

Average housewives are still taking whiteness, softness and cleanliness tests — and I shall spend another season wondering where the sponsors hide the film it, which the victim picked the wrong pile of clothes or liked the taste of butter better than that other spread.

It is with keen personal regret that I report we're in for still another season of those repitious family scenes in which daddy or one of the kids rehash the results of a toothpaste test in a college.

My attention has been diverted to other shows recently, but the one thing I'm hoping is that those little boys who rub chocolate syrup, gravy, and soup into clean towels and table cloths will have vanished during the summer.

NBC's "The Joey Bishop Show" got off to a sluggish start Wednesday night with an uninhibited sound track loaded with fake laughter. Bishop, one of the bright young men of comedy, plays a scared underling in a Hollywood publicity office. In the opening show he is fired, and unsuspectingly sounds off about his boss before the concealed microphone and camera of a television show.

"The Candid Camera" device may be new, but the situation and all the jokes were vintage. Recommended tonight: Ernie Kovacs comedy special, ABC, 10:30-11 (Eastern Daylight Time) —first of a series of six which will turn up from time to time during the season.

Views on Television - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — As new shows erupt across the television schedule these days a new batch of commercials are coming into sight too.

As far as novelty and fresh approaches to salesmanship are concerned, there seems to be little worth mentioning except a stronger trend this season toward weaving plots into the pitches.

Wells fined him $25 on each ticket. Usual fines for parking violations are $3 to $5. Kahn told Judge Wells the tickets had snowballed so fast he found he was without money to pay them.

Garden Gossip

Ever hear of a formosa tree? There are two at 715 S. Court St., according to Mary E. Fullen of 215 W. Main St. The trees were brought to Circleville by Mrs. Fullen's tenents who came from Little Rock, Ark., and they're doing fine.

Mrs. Fullen says her moon flowers are blooming. We have not seen moon flowers in a long time. If one is patient enough he may see the flower open from a bud. It's something of an experience to watch this performance.

Arthur Wall, Long St., Ashville, has tuberose blooming now.

The giant blue lobelia is the flower blooming along the roadside now. It is a clubby spike with quite blue florets blooming along the stem. It's pretty enough for planting in the September garden if you have a dampish spot.

BLUE LOBELIA just may be a biennial. We'll ask the nature encyclopedia, Floyd Bartley.

Every now and then we discover that certain wildflowers are biennials. In which case it does a gardener no good to dig a blooming plant.

It's almost time now for Pickaway County's fringed gentians to bloom. This rare and lovely little flower does grow here.

Wild flower tours are generally scheduled in the spring. Floyd Bartley could give garden club members the treat of their lives on a fall wild flower tour.

Carl Justice, Whisler, planted mangoes in his garden. Red peppers came up instead. The peppers are small, pointed and hot. But very eye-catching!

The Justice youngsters filled some of the peppers with water by way of entertainment last week. And everywhere the water came in contact with their skins they were burned — not severely but enough to have two of the kids yowling with pain. Tim and Hope were the two who really know what red hot pepper means now.

THEIR father, Carl, was telling me that as a kid he had great fun with cattails. He'd dip them in kerosene and light them to make wonderful flaming torches. Now Carl grows because his kids play with red peppers.

Mrs. Robert Griesheimer, S. Court St., is an African violet fancier. She has about 60 plants. This is just a few too many for her to care for.

Bess Ebert, Route 4, Circleville, has one of the finest sultanias we ever saw. It's bright red and blooming beautifully.

Mrs. Robert Moeller of Wiesbaden, Germany, who now lives in Circleville, had never seen dogwood until she arrived in Pickaway County. She adores it.

Mrs. Roy Hampp, E. Franklin St., has a planter filled with the so-called red African violet. This is a trailing plant, you know and beautiful indeed in a planter.

As far as Japanese knotweed is concerned this is the week for which I have waited all summer. The tiny racemes of blossoms that are all along the stem will turn pink. They only last a few days unless I decide to dry them. They dry nicely.

SOME of my knotweed has reverted and the blossoms drop off without turning pink. Believe me this is going to be dug up and destroyed.

We have billions of grasshoppers that are frolicking around in the happiest manner. They do not seem to be eating anything. They line up on the marigolds and zinnias but I see no damage.

The grasshoppers also hopped onto the clothes on my line. At ironing time I saw where one of my dresses had been chewed. I'm blaming the grasshoppers.

We've got crickets, too. When I swept the kitchen I saw as many as a dozen at a time. The crickets do not seem to bother anything.

There is new plant along the pond's edge about the size of a cattail. I believe it is one of the sedges. It is reed-like with no foliage. It's exceedingly graceful.

The cattails really have menacing root systems. I find one cannot pull them up by hand. I think I'll have to dig them. We can easily see how the cattails could take over a pond.

JOAN WAGNER was all starry-eyed last Saturday at her greenhouse opening. Loads of people had come for their gift plant. The Wagners had entertained the idea of building a greenhouse. Now, Joan has one already built and this will be a commercial greenhouse.

Really, every gardener alive entertains the idea of greenhouseing at one time or another. Any business project is exciting but a greenhouse seems especially so.

Corilla Pontius has knotweed that never turns pink.

If you want to know the truth about a rose, go to the American Rose Annual. Look up the rose in "Proof of the Pudding." Growers from every section of the country give you the plain unvarnished truth about the performances of the roses.

Because I love the color lavender, I fell like a ton of bricks for the so-called lavender roses. I have tried them all, except Lavender Girl which has maintained its original price of $5. Of course I want Lavender Girl. Here's what they say about it in "Proof of the Pudding": "Overrated," "Price out of line," "Not worth $5," "Weak Canes."

THERE are good comments as well: "Attractive buds," "Good Full Blooms," "Nice lavender for those who like it."

There is enough adverse criticism to make me think twice before I pay $5 for it. Wish there were "Proofs of the Pudding" for all plant material.

Our Japanese knotweed has always had fine pink blossoms on it. This year a big patch of it has bloomed and gone. It never did turn pink.

I have every intention of grubbing out the white knotweed. It must have been a seedling plant that grew to maturity.

If you stop Bob Brehmer to ask him what happened to his lawn (the grass is all dead), he'll answer even before you finish your question.

"We did it on purpose," he says. "We used Erase." Brehmer says the fascinating part about this new lawn treatment is that although it kills all vegetation (and how!), within five days, the toxic effect will be gone and you may reseed your lawn.

Frankly we thought Mr. Brehmer had overfertilized or applied too heavy an application of weed killer.

This new method means that homeowners can start out from scratch on a new lawn without digging up the entire grass area.

At the Whisler Presbyterian homecoming last Sunday, which celebrated the 103d anniversary of the little church, the sanctuary was decorated with flowers from the Loring Hill garden, Kingston. Hill provided two enormous baskets of flowers. In one were long stemmed zinnias, red and yellow striped. In the other he had combined gloriosa daisies and big heads of live - for - ever which is now in bloom.

At the homecoming we talked to Mrs. Gertrude Strawser of Adelphi. She reminded that once we swapped a start of Virginia bluebells for African violets. Mrs. Strawser still has the bluebells.

ALL of Mrs. Strawser's houseplants froze last year when she was in the hospital. When her friends heard this they arrived with new plants and cuttings so she could start her collection again.

Mrs. Fred Minshall and Mrs. Mabel Stout also had beautiful bouquets at the Whisler homecoming. Zinnias and marigolds are doing garden honors at the moment. Both flowers were included in the arrangements.

Miss Hazel Marie Williams, Columbus, weekends at her house in Whisler. The doctor told her not to go out into her garden until her poison ivy was better. She didn't follow orders. She was out picking butterbeans and peppers to take back with her.

Begonias Are Rediscovered

Popularity once Lost Is Recovered Again

Tuberous begonias were a favorite with Victorian gardeners who were once told.

For unknown reasons these flowers lost out in popularity. Until at the beginning of the century they were not known at all in the United States.

They were rediscovered by a soldier of World War I who saw them blooming in Belgium gardens where they were widely grown.

They have regained the favor of American gardeners and are successfully grown everywhere now.

THERE are many varieties and colors of tuberous begonias. Because some are drooping in habit they make ideal plants for hanging baskets.

The tubers may be started in flats of peat moss as early as March. Later they may be transplanted to four inch pots. When the roots reach the sides of the pots they are again transplanted.

One authority gives the best potting mixture as two parts fibrous loam, one part peat moss, half part well decayed manure and one half part sand. To each quart of mixture add one quarter ounce of bone meal.

If planted directly in the garden they should be set out about 12 inches apart at tomato planting time. Light shade is generally recommended.

Weak liquid fertilizer applied twice a week will increase the size of the flowers.

Incidentally, the flowers come in every color but blue.

Hale Amaryllis Provides Magic For Gardens

Time was in Pickaway County when the hardy amaryllis was very rare.

Now almost every garden and yard has a colony of these delectable enchanting flowers. If left alone they will increase. If divided they will also increase.

So if your neighbor gives you a pretty strong hint that she'd like a start you can share without jeopardizing your colony.

These exquisite flowers are known botanically as Lycoris Squamigera. Local gardeners call them magic lilies, surprise lilies, resurrection and naked ladies.

ONE garden visitor amused me to no end by saying they reminded her of ladies who had their hats on but had forgotten to put on their dresses. A revolting situation indeed! For a lady that is. For the lilies themselves they do not need foliage. They are exquisite and beyond improvement.

In the spring magic lilies produce beautiful long green leaves a sort of cross between dogfod and amaryllis foliage. By July this foliage has died down completely. In many cases there is no trace of the plant.

Over-zealous gardeners often try to fill in the bare spot with an annual, all too frequently injuring the bulb when they plant the annual.

The suddenness with which the stalk appears accounts for its many different names. It is in fact almost magic. One week there will be nothing. Then quite suddenly the stalks appear with their lily-like flowers in umbels of softest pink tinged frequently with blue.

The wise gardener will mark the locality of his magic lilies with a small label.

The stalks of well grown magic lilies are often three feet high.

Perhaps the largest colony of magic lilies around here is the one between the boundaries of the Dr. Joe Goeller place and Corilla Pontius's garden. This is a magnificent planting and seems to increase each passing year.

A 30-foot killer whale, a carnivorous mammal of the antarctic seas, has been known to attack the giant blue whale, which sometimes reaches 100 feet in length and weighs 150 tons.

Grape Harvest Fine at Hampps

Sweet smelling Concord grapes hanging from an old fashioned grape arbor in September can really remind a person, if he is of that vintage, of pre - World War I backyards.

And Roy Hampp, 423 E. Franklin St., has just such a grape arbor. He inherited it when he came to live in his present residence.

And right now that grape arbor is a beautiful sight. It's been a fine year for grapes and the Hampp's hang in big clusters from the leafy ceiling of the arbor. And they smell very good.

Roy Hampp takes the grape arbor in his stride. He's really flower crazy. Mrs. Hampp says the place looks like a wilderness because her husband wants to keep every flower that comes up. And Mr. Hampp says, "Yes, he does."

INCIDENTALLY, the grape arbor has its owners puzzled. The grapes on the west side grow and completely cover the arbor. Those planted on the east side do not thrive at all. Hampp had sent for some of the fancier varieties including white several years ago and he bled them along with greatest care. But they refused to grow.

What are the Hampps going to do with the grapes? Give them away. There are four grown-up Hampps with children and a few grandchildren of their own.

Mrs. Hampp herself cans a dozen quarts of grape juice each fall and then she's through with the harvest.

She obligingly gave her grape juice recipe to us. Just wash the grapes, put them in a kettle with a minimum amount of water, cook at a rolling boil until skins have popped off, strain through cloth. To one gallon of juice add one half cup of sugar, reheat to boiling point and pour into jars.

We asked specifically if one half cup of sugar to a whole gallon of juice was enough sugar and Mrs. Hampp said that they did not like a

Lacy Lanterns Easily Made

The bright orange Chinese lanterns are to be found in the garden now and no other seed pod that we know of is quite so showy.

In an issue of Horticulture Magazine, Charlotte McArthur tells of skeletonizing these orange pods so that the lacy webbing of their framework is visible.

Skeletonizing Chinese lanterns is an easy though tedious task. To remove the covering take three and one half cups water and one half cup detergent with bleach.

Bring the two ingredients to a full boil then allow to simmer and add the Chinese lanterns which have been pricked with a pin several times so that the solution may enter. Continue to simmer for 12 minutes. Place lanterns in warm water.

THEN with a small handbrush dab at the covering of the lanterns. It will flake off easily. Take care not to tear the framework and webbing of the lantern.

To remove the seed sack gently squeeze it out through end of lantern. The opening will not be noticed if this is carefully done.

Dry on paper towels. Later the lanterns may be sprayed with gilt or silver.

The botanical name for Chinese lanterns is Physalis, alkekengi. It is an easily grown perennial which spreads rapidly. No other plant equals it when it comes to providing color for dried arrangements.

too sweet grape juice. More sugar may be added if desired.

Her husband explained that grape juice fermented easily if too much sugar was used.

THE HAMPPS had asters in bloom. Mrs. Hampp calls them fall roses. Their dahlias had from ten to 15 blooms on each plant. Some roses were still in bloom.

The Hampp yard is long and very narrow, but there was room for many flowers. The zinnias were past their peak. The bells of Ireland were turning brown and the dailies and peonies, too were gone.

Another thing that was going, if Mrs. Hampp had her say, were the fire bushes. The fire bushes are the little rounded annual bushes that self - seed so prolifically. Mrs. Hampp's were not little but almost waist high.

The Hampps had a white climbing rose they were especially fond of and a big wisteria vine covered, in the spring, with blossoms.

They had many flowers but nothing equalled, in the opinion of the garden editor, the old fashioned grape arbor and those good smelling Concord grapes.

Take Plants Indoors Now

Houseplants should be taken indoors now.

They more easily acclimate themselves to furnace heat if they get it in gradual doses. They can stand the cold alright. It's sudden heat that makes them lose their leaves.

We just could not believe summer was over when we were sweating in the 90 - degree weather. But come the change it is easy enough to believe.

So if you're one for houseplants, and there is nothing that makes a dwelling so homey as well grown houseplants, bring them in immediately.

DO USE discretion in the number of plants you keep in the house. Beautify your home. Do not allow your home to become a hospital for feeble ones.

It's perfectly true that some houseplants like coleus and sultanias are so easily rooted in water that it is better to root new plants than to try to pot up mature plants.

As far as the decorative effect is concerned, several of one kind of well grown plant are often more effective than the same number of many different species.

Ohio Trucking Group Names New Director

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Permanent appointment of Donald B. Smith as managing director of the Ohio Trucking Association was announced today by OTA President J. Otis Ford of Sandusky.

Smith has been acting managing director since April.

Smith, a World War II flier, holds a business administration degree from Ohio State University. He lives in suburban Upper Arlington.

I WONDERED if it could belong to the agapanthus family (Blue Lily of the Nile). I am acquainted with this plant only through catalog reading. It was evident when I read descriptions of agapanthus varieties that I was on the wrong trail.

I believe Mrs. Pontius's attractive plant to be liriop or lily turf.

Liriop is a hardy perennial with dark green daylily-like foliage. Above the fountain of foliage arise spikes of tiny mauve flowers, then berries of polished black that hold until April.

Liriop is said to be a fine ground cover as well as an excellent edging. It is easily grown in dense shade or full sun.

Mrs. Pontius came by her plant at an exchange held in Kingston several years ago. This is the first year it has bloomed in her garden.

Mrs. Pontius said she had the plant in full sun and moved it into a shady location this year.

Liriop, Muscari, Eritronia, is also known as lily turf or border grass. The foliage is evergreen.

Garden Gossip

Ever hear of a formosa tree? There are two at 715 S. Court St., according to Mary E. Fullen of 215 W. Main St. The trees were brought to Circleville by Mrs. Fullen's tenants who came from Little Rock, Ark., and they're doing fine.

Mrs. Fullen says her moon flowers are blooming. We have not seen moon flowers in a long time. If one is patient enough he may see the flower open from a bud. It's something of an experience to watch this performance.

Arthur Wall, Long St., Ashville, has tuberoses blooming now.

The giant blue lobelia is the flower blooming along the roadside now. It is a clubby spike with quite blue flowers blooming along the stem. It's pretty enough for planting in the September garden if you have a dampish spot.

BLUE LOBELIA just may be a biennial. We'll ask the nature encyclopedia, Floyd Bartley.

Every now and then we discover that certain wildflowers are biennials. In which case it does a gardener no good to dig a blooming plant.

It's almost time now for Pickaway County's fringed gentians to bloom. This rare and lovely little flower does grow here.

Wild flower tours are generally scheduled in the spring. Floyd Bartley could give garden club members the treat of their lives on a fall wild flower tour.

Carl Justice, Whisler, planted mangoes in his garden. Red peppers came up instead. The peppers are small, pointed and hot. But very eye-catching!

The Justice youngsters filled some of the peppers with water by way of entertainment last week. And everywhere the water came in contact with their skins they were burned — not severely but enough to have two of the kids yowling with pain. Tim and Hope were the two who really know what red hot pepper means now.

THEIR father, Carl, was telling me that as a kid he had great fun with cattails. He'd dip them in kerosene and light them to make wonderful flaming torches. Now Carl grows because his kids play with red hot peppers.

Mrs. Robert Griesheimer, S. Court St., is an African violet fancier. She has about 60 plants. This is just a few too many for her to care for.

Bess Ebert, Route 4, Circleville, has one of the finest sultanas we ever saw. It's bright red and blooming beautifully.

Mrs. Robert Moeller of Wiesbaden, Germany, who now lives in Circleville, had never seen dogwood until she arrived in Pickaway County. She adores it.

Mrs. Roy Hampp, E. Franklin St., has a planter filled with the so-called red African violet. This is a trailing plant, you know and beautiful indeed in a planter.

As far as Japanese knotweed is concerned this is the week for which I have waited all summer. The tiny racemes of blossoms that are all along the stem will turn pink. They only last a few days unless I decide to dry them. They dry nicely.

SOME of my knotweed has re-verted and the blossoms drop off without turning pink. Believe me this is going to be dug up and destroyed.

We have billions of grasshoppers that are frolicking around in the happiest manner. They do not seem to be eating anything. They line up on the marigolds and zinnias but I see no damage.

The grasshoppers also hopped onto the clothes on my line. At ironing time I saw where one of my dresses had been chewed. I'm blaming the grasshoppers.

We've got crickets, too. When I swept the kitchen I saw as many as a dozen at a time. The crickets do not seem to bother anything.

There is new plant along the pond's edge about the size of a cattail. I believe it is one of the sedges. It is reed-like with no foliage. It's exceedingly graceful.

The cattails really have menacing root systems. I find one cannot pull them up by hand. I think I'll have to dig them. We can easily see how the cattails could take over a pond.

JOAN WAGNER was all starry-eyed last Saturday at her greenhouse opening. Loads of people had come for their gift plant. The Wagners had entertained the idea of building a greenhouse. Now, Joan has one already built and this will be a commercial greenhouse.

Really, every gardener alive entertains the idea of greenhousing at one time or another. Any business project is exciting but a greenhouse seems especially so.

Corilla Pontius has knotweed that never turns pink.

If you want to know the truth about a rose, go to the American Rose Annual. Look up the rose in "Proof of the Pudding." Growers from every section of the country give you the plain unvarnished truth about the performances of the roses.

Because I love the color lavender, I fell like a ton of bricks for the so-called lavender roses. I have tried them all, except Lavender Girl which has maintained its original price of $5. Of course I want Lavender Girl. Here's what they say about it in "Proof of the Pudding": "Overrated." "Price out of line." "Not worth $5." "Weak Canes."

THERE are good comments as well: "Attractive buds." "Good Full Blooms." "Nice lavender for those who like it."

There is enough adverse criticism to make me think twice before I pay $5 for it. Wish there were "Proofs of the Pudding" for all plant material.

Our Japanese knotweed has all ways had fine pink blossoms on it. This year a big patch of it has bloomed and gone. It never did turn pink.

I have every intention of grubbing out the white knotweed. It must have been a seedling plant that grew to maturity.

If you stop Bob Brehmer to ask him what happened to his lawn (the grass is all dead), he'll answer even before you finish your question.

"We did it on purpose," he says. "We used Erase." Brehmer says the fascinating part about this new lawn treatment is that although it kills all vegetation (and how!), within five days, the toxic effect will be gone and you may reseed your lawn.

Frankly we thought Mr. Brehmer had overfertilized or applied too heavy an application of weed killer.

This new method means that homeowners can start out from scratch on a new lawn without digging up the entire grass area.

At the Whisler Presbyterian homecoming last Sunday, which celebrated the 103rd anniversary of the little church, the sanctuary was decorated with flowers from the Loring Hill garden, Kingston. Hill provided two enormous baskets of flowers. In one were long stemmed zinnias, red and yellow striped. In the other he had combined gloriosa daisies and big heads of live-for-ever which is now in bloom.

At the homecoming we talked to Mrs. Gertrude Strawser of Adelphi. She reminded that once we swapped a start of Virginia bluebells for African violets. Mrs. Strawser still has the bluebells.

ALL of Mrs. Strawser's houseplants froze last year when she was in the hospital. When her friends heard this they arrived with new plants and cuttings so she could start her collection again.

Mrs. Fred Minshall and Mrs. Mabel Stout also had beautiful bouquets at the Whisler homecoming. Zinnias and marigolds are doing garden honors at the moment. Both flowers were included in the arrangements.

Miss Hazel Marie Williams, Columbus, weekends at her house in Whisler. The doctor told her not to go out into her garden until her poison ivy was better. She didn't follow orders. She was out picking butterbeans and peppers to take back with her.

Begonias Are Rediscovered

Popularity once Lost Is Recovered Again

Tuberous begonias were a favorite with Victorian gardeners where they were once told.

For unknown reasons these flowers lost out in popularity. Until at the beginning of the century they were not known at all in the United States.

They were rediscovered by a soldier of World War I who saw them blooming in Belgium gardens where they were widely grown.

They have regained the favor of American gardeners and are successfully grown everywhere now.

THERE are many varieties and colors of tuberous begonias. Because some are drooping in habit they make ideal plants for hanging baskets.

The tubers may be started in flats of peat moss as early as March. Later they may be transplanted to four inch pots. When the roots reach the sides of the pots they are again transplanted.

One authority gives the best potting mixture as two parts fibrous loam, one part peat moss, half part well decayed manure and one half part sand. To each quart of mixture add one quarter ounce of bone meal.

If planted directly in the garden they should be set out about 12 inches apart at tomato planting time. Light shade is generally recommended.

Weak liquid fertilizer applied twice a week will increase the size of the flowers.

Incidentally, the flowers come in every color but blue.

Hale Amaryllis Provides Magic For Gardens

Time was in Pickaway County when the hardy amaryllis was very rare.

Now almost every garden and yard has a colony of these delectable enchanting flowers. If left alone they will increase. If divided they will also increase.

So if your neighbor gives you a pretty strong hint that she'd like a start you can share without jeopardizing your colony.

These exquisite flowers are known botanically as Lycoris Squamigera. Local gardeners call them magic lilies, surprise lilies, resurrection and naked ladies.

ONE garden visitor amused me to no end by saying they reminded her of ladies who had their hats on but had forgotten to put on their dresses. A revolting situation indeed! For a lady that is. For the lilies themselves they do not need foliage. They are exquisite and beyond improvement.

In the spring magic lilies produce beautiful long green leaves a sort of cross between daffodil and amaryllis foliage. By July this foliage has died down completely. In many cases there is no trace of the plant.

Over-zealous gardeners often try to fill in the bare spot with an annual, all too frequently injuring the bulb when they plant the annual.

The suddenness with which the stalk appears accounts for its many different names. It is in fact almost magic. One week there will be nothing. Then quite suddenly the stalks appear with their lily-like flowers in umbels of softest pink tinged frequently with blue.

The wise gardener will mark the locality of his magic lilies with a small label.

The stalks of well grown magic lilies are often three feet high.

Perhaps the largest colony of magic lilies around here is the one between the boundaries of the Dr. Joe Goeller place and Corilla Pontius's garden. This is a magnificent planting and seems to increase each passing year.

Grape Harvest Fine at Hampps

Sweet smelling Concord grapes hanging from an old fashioned grape arbor in September can really remind a person, if he is of that vintage, of pre-World War I backyards.

And Roy Hampp, 423 E. Franklin St., has just such a grape arbor. He inherited it when he came to live in his present residence.

And right now that grape arbor is a beautiful sight. It's been a fine year for grapes and the Hampps' hang in big clusters from the leafy ceiling of the arbor. And they smell very good.

Roy Hampp takes the grape arbor in his stride. He's really flower crazy. Mrs. Hampp says the place looks like a wilderness because her husband wants to keep every flower that comes up. And Mr. Hampp says, "Yes, he does."

INCIDENTALLY, the grape arbor has its owners puzzled. The grapes on the west side grow and completely cover the arbor. Those planted on the east side do not thrive at all. Hampp had sent for some of the fancier varieties including white several years ago and he bled them along with greatest care. But they refused to grow.

What are the Hampps going to do with the grapes? Give them away. There are four grown-up Hampps with children and a few grandchildren of their own.

Mrs. Hampp herself cans a dozen quarts of grape juice each fall and then she's through with the harvest.

She obligingly gave her grape juice recipe to us. Just wash the grapes, put them in a kettle with a minimum amount of water, cook at a rolling boil until skins have popped off, strain through cloth. To one gallon of juice add one half cup of sugar, reheat to boiling point and pour into jars.

We asked specifically if one half cup of sugar to a whole gallon of juice was enough sugar and Mrs. Hampp said that they did not like a too sweet grape juice. More sugar may be added if desired.

Her husband explained that grape juice fermented easily if too much sugar was used.

THE HAMPPS had asters in bloom. Mrs. Hampp calls them fall roses. Their dahlias had from ten to 15 blooms on each plant. Some roses were still in bloom.

The Hampp yard is long and very narrow, but there was room for many flowers. The zinnias were past their peak. The bells of Ireland were turning brown and the daylilies and peonies, too were gone.

Another thing that was going, if Mrs. Hampp had her say, were the fire bushes. The fire bushes are the little rounded annual bushes that self-seed so prolifically. Mrs. Hampp's were not little but almost waist high.

The Hampps had a white climbing rose they were especially fond of and a big wisteria vine covered, in the spring, with blossoms.

They had many flowers but nothing equalled, in the opinion of the garden editor, the old fashioned grape arbor and those good smelling Concord grapes.

Take Plants Indoors Now

Houseplants should be taken indoors now.

They more easily acclimate themselves to furnace heat if they get it in gradual doses. They can stand the cold alright. It's sudden heat that makes them lose their leaves.

We just could not believe summer was over when we were sweating in the 90-degree weather. But come the change it is easy enough to believe.

So if you're one for houseplants, and there is nothing that makes a dwelling so homey as well grown houseplants, bring them in immediately.

Lacy Lanterns Easily Made

The bright orange Chinese lanterns are to be found in the garden now and no other seed pod that we know of is quite so showy.

In an issue of Horticulture Magazine, Charlotte McArthur tells of skeletonizing these orange pods so that the lacy webbing of their framework is visible.

Skeletonizing Chinese lanterns is an easy though tedious task. To remove the covering take three and one half cups water and one half cup detergent with bleach. Bring the two ingredients to a full boil then allow to simmer and add the Chinese lanterns which have been pricked with a pin several times so that the solution may enter. Continue to simmer for 12 minutes. Place lanterns in warm water.

THEN with a small handbrush dab at the covering of the lanterns. It will flake off easily. Take care not to tear the framework and webbing of the lantern.

To remove the seed sack gently squeeze it out through end of lantern. The opening will not be noticed if this is carefully done.

Dry on paper towels. Later the lanterns may be sprayed with gilt or silver.

The botanical name for Chinese lanterns is Physalis, alkekengi. It is an easily grown perennial which spreads rapidly. No other plant equals it when it comes to providing color for dried arrangements.

Nine successful jumps were reported Tuesday night.

Along several miles of the 25-mile border between East and West Berlin, houses on one side of the street belong to the East and the street to the West. The Communists have bricked up ground floor doors and windows, but upper stories are mostly open.

Jack Paar's Berlin Hassle Causes Stir in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jack Paar is the movie industry's hate of the week, thanks to his performance at the bastions of Berlin.

Paar's penchant for trouble bounced back on Hollywood. Congress and the Pentagon hit the ceiling at reports of troops being used as extras for Paar's show from Berlin.

Some congressmen aimed their complaints at the use of troops in movies, especially Darryl Zanuck's current "The Longest Day." There were calls for a review of the practice of service cooperation with movie makers.

All this pained the producers and no doubt the Pentagon, too. For 20 years, Hollywood and the services have been working together in an alliance that was both smooth and little known. Both sides claim it has been mutually profitable.

The alliance hasn't been noticed about for an obvious reason. Too much publicity would cause politicians to question—with some justice—about such use of taxpayers' money. That is exactly what happened in the Paar case.

How does the system operate?

A producer sends his script to the Pentagon with a request for service cooperation. A board reviews the script with an eye toward how the service is portrayed. If in a bad light, cooperation is refused. Or the board might point out what it found objectionable and leave it to the producer whether he wanted to make changes.

"From Here to Eternity" kicked around Hollywood for years until the late Buddy Adler found ways to make it palatable to the Army. "The Caine Mutiny" also required changes before the Navy would lend its ships.

"Most service pictures couldn't be made without Pentagon help," explained a top producer. "We couldn't afford to pay for that many extras. And we would have to means of securing the equipment."

What is the advantage of cooperation to the services?

No. 1, they can control film material, so irresponsible producers cannot portray the services in a derogative way.

No. 2, there is the intangible matter of morale and enlistment glamor.

Who can measure the effect of these films in World War II: "Wake Island," "Purple Heart," "Destination Tokyo," "The Story of G.I. Joe," "30 Seconds Over Tokyo," "They Were Expendable," "Air Force," "Winged Victory"?

Or of these films since then: "Battleground," "To Hell and Back," "The Bridge at Toko-Ri," "Sands of Iwo Jima," "Strategic Air Command," "The Halls of Montezuma"?

Said a producer: "It would be tragic if Paar wiped out Zanuck's picture. D-Day is a great chapter in American courage and especially timely today by its portrayal of Allied cooperation. It deserves to be told."

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ham heads the hit parade in many supermarket and neighborhood grocery listing of specials this week.

Stores in New England, the Middle Atlantic States, Midwest and Far West will feature smoked ham, while others in the New York area are offering fresh (uncured) ham and canned ham. Loin of pork also is a favored item in some Eastern and Midwestern markets.

Pork prices have held up fairly well in recent months as hog farmers have maintained a cautious course on production. Last spring's pig crop, which produced the hams and pork chops now coming to market, was up 7 per cent over that of 1960 but the indications now are that the fall crop—representing next spring and summer's pork supply—will be up only 2 per cent over last fall.

Pork chops were down 4 to 20 cents a pound over a fairly wide area this week, although higher in some places.

Broiling and frying chickens also are featured in many markets, reflecting record output and wholesale prices at their lowest levels in many years.

Beef is represented in some sections with specials on such bargain favorites as chuck roast and hamburger, while stewing chickens are offered at bargain rates in some Midwestern stores.

Fish specials included smelts, flounder. Leg of lamb is an occasional special in New England and the Midwest.

Produce markets offer a fair-sized list of outstanding and good buys both in vegetables and fruits.

Heading the list among vegetables are beans, cabbage, carrots, Chinese cabbage, corn, endive, escarole, green squash, watercress and rutabagas. Onions and potatoes also are an outstanding buy where you can get them from nearby fields, but no better than a good buy elsewhere.

Other good buys are artichokes, beets, broccoli, cauliflower, celery, eggplant, lettuce, mushrooms, peppers, radishes, spinach, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, cucumbers, yellow squash, turnips and parsnips. Parsley is fairly expensive.

Fruit counters offer the best bargains among honeydew melons, limes, lemons, western bartlett pears, prunes and grapes.

Apples, avocados, peaches, California oranges and bananas rated as good buys, but you have to pay more for cantaloupe, cranshaw melons, nectarines, strawberries and raspberries.

PONTIAC TRIGGERS ANOTHER TEAM OF WINNERS. Every one is a fancy mover. Choice of 110, 115, 120 or 140 h.p., gas-saving 4-cylinder engine. A couple of extra cost options: 4-barrel carb, 166 h.p. Plenty of punch without big maintenance and running costs. The citizen who wants more can go for an aluminum V-8 option that pulls 185 horses.

TEMPEST HAS A FRONT ENGINE/REAR TRANSMISSION! (The only American car with this feature.) It gives Tempest equal weight at every wheel. It has biting traction on the bricks or in the mud. Tires last longer. Brakes take hold like they mean it. The front floor is practically flat (no big bump in the middle). Tempest seats six—easily!

TEMPEST HAS INDEPENDENT SUSPENSION—FRONT AND REAR! Each wheel (and it's a big 15" one) moves up and down independently of the opposite wheel. There's no solid axle in the rear. Result: Firm ride on pavement, soft ride in the boondocks! Swing axles in the rear help the Tempest to carve out clean, firm curves.

PLUSH NEW SERIES—THE LE MANS (LUH-MAHNZ). The Tempest Convertible and Coupe are out this year in special custom trim. Call them the Le Mans! They both have sports-type bucket seats, full carpeting, floor mounted stick shift, acceleration rear axle option—no extra cost. Extra cost option: 4-speed gearbox. Take one out—it's a going machine!

Drive America's only front engine/rear transmission car...it's balanced like none of the others!

Jack Paar's Berlin Hassle Causes Stir in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jack Paar is the movie industry's hate of the week, thanks to his performance at the bastions of Berlin.

Paar's penchant for trouble bounced back on Hollywood. Congress and the Pentagon hit the ceiling at reports of troops being used as extras for Paar's show from Berlin.

Some congressmen aimed their complaints at the use of troops in movies, especially Darryl Zanuck's current "The Longest Day." There were calls for a review of the practice of service cooperation with movie makers.

All this pained the producers and no doubt the Pentagon, too. For 20 years, Hollywood and the services have been working together in an alliance that was both smooth and little known. Both sides claim it has been mutually profitable.

The alliance hasn't been noticed about for an obvious reason. Too much publicity would cause politicians to question—with some justice—about such use of taxpayers' money. That is exactly what happened in the Paar case.

How does the system operate? A producer sends his script to the Pentagon with a request for service cooperation. A board reviews the script with an eye toward how the service is portrayed. If in a bad light, cooperation is refused. Or the board might point out what it found objectionable and leave it to the producer whether he wanted to make changes.

"From Here to Eternity" kicked around Hollywood for years until the late Buddy Adler found ways to make it palatable to the Army. "The Caine Mutiny" also required changes before the Navy would lend its ships.

"Most service pictures couldn't be made without Pentagon help," explained a top producer. "We couldn't afford to pay for that many extras. And we would have to means of securing the equipment."

What is the advantage of cooperation to the services?

No. 1, they can control film material, so irresponsible producers cannot portray the services in a derogative way.

No. 2, there is the intangible matter of morale and enlistment glamor.

Who can measure the effect of these films in World War II: "Wake Island," "Purple Heart," "Destination Tokyo," "The Story of G.I. Joe," "30 Seconds Over Tokyo," "They Were Expendable," "Air Force," "Winged Victory"?

Or of these films since then: "Battle Ground," "To Hell and Back," "The Bridge at Toko-Ri," "Sands of Iwo Jima," "Strategic Air Command," "The Halls of Montezuma"?

Said a producer: "It would be tragic if Paar wiped out Zanuck's picture. D-Day is a great chapter in American courage and especially timely today by its portrayal of Allied cooperation. It deserves to be told."

Ham heads the hit parade in many supermarket and neighborhood grocery listing of specials this week.

Stores in New England, the Middle Atlantic States, Midwest and Far West will feature smoked ham, while others in the New York area are offering fresh (uncured) ham and canned ham. Loin of pork also is a favored item in some Eastern and Midwestern markets.

Pork prices have held up fairly well in recent months as hog farmers have maintained a cautious course on production. Last spring's pig crop, which produced the hams and pork chops now coming to market, was up 7 per cent over that of 1960 but the indications now are that the fall crop—representing next spring and summer's pork supply—will be up only 2 per cent over last fall.

Pork chops were down 4 to 20 cents a pound over a fairly wide area this week, although higher in some places.

Broiling and frying chickens also are featured in many markets, reflecting record output and wholesale prices at their lowest levels in many years.

Beef is represented in some sections with specials on such bargain favorites as chuck roast and hamburger, while stewing chickens are offered at bargain rates in some Midwestern stores.

Fish specials included smelts, flounder. Leg of lamb is an occasional special in New England and the Midwest.

Produce markets offer a fair-sized list of outstanding and good buys both in vegetables and fruits.

Heading the list among vegetables are beans, cabbage, carrots, Chinese cabbage, corn, endive, escarole, green squash, watercress and rutabagas. Onions and potatoes also are an outstanding buy where you can get them from nearby fields, but no better than a good buy elsewhere.

Other good buys are artichokes, beets, broccoli, cauliflower, celery, eggplant, lettuce, mushrooms, peppers, radishes, spinach, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, cucumbers, yellow squash, turnips and parsnips. Parsley is fairly expensive.

Fruit counters offer the best bargains among honeydew melons, limes, lemons, western Bartlett pears, prunes and grapes.

Apples, avocados, peaches, California oranges and bananas and rated as good buys, but you'll have to pay more for cantaloupe, cranshaw melons, nectarines, strawberries and raspberries.

POOR RISK?—Every year for 75 years John T. Griffin, III, has chuckled on his birthday, and he chuckled again this year on his 100th. Seventy-five years ago he was rejected for a life insurance policy as a poor risk. He was born in Waterloo, Ill.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Optimism, that little fire burning brightly in the dark woods of the world, got rained on again. So those who insist man is too intelligent to blow himself to blazes must still wait and see.

Talks between the United States and Russia, not only on banning nuclear tests but on disarmament in general, have broken down. On Sept. 9 the two powers recessed their conversations on banning nuclear tests after 340 sessions in 34 months. It was about time, since the Soviets, after a layoff of almost three years, had already resumed testing.

Premier Khrushchev brushed aside such talks again. He said there would be no more moratoriums on nuclear tests until there was agreement on general disarmament.

For the inhabitants of the sunny side of the street this was indeed gloomy news but not altogether black because ever since midsummer the United States and Russia had been holding separate talks on disarmament.

Rather, the two sides—in sessions in Washington, Moscow and

New York—had not actually been discussing disarmament but only how to set up full-scale discussion on disarmament.

Then Wednesday this collapsed too. The United States and Russia reported to the United Nations the complete failure of their talks on how to start talking about disarmament in general.

Since the end of the war in 1945 the two countries have had perhaps thousands of conversations on disarmament just the two of them alone or in various international groups in various places. "The result is still nothing."

This naturally raises some questions which, while old, are still unanswered.

1. Does Russia really want disarmament or is it stalling until it acquires such a frightening arsenal of weapons that it can terrorize the world into submission?

2. Is it to the best interest of the United States ever to disarm so long as Russia and Red China, with their endless resources of manpower, persist in their campaign to own the earth?

3. Is it possible for a number of nations to have the most modern weapons—the United States, Russia, Britain and France have them and Red China will soon—without getting into war with them, by design or accident?

Only one thing is certain: Until there is a disarmament agreement, and no one is offering odds there will be, the United States and Russia will keep on trying to outdo each other in thinking up ever more nightmare weapons.

Girls' Industrial School Freeze Ends

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A freeze on admissions to the Girls' Industrial School at Delaware has been lifted, but it remains on the Lancaster Boys' Industrial School Gov. Michael V. DiSalle says.

The freeze was imposed Aug. 15. It was intended to relieve over-crowding at both institutions. A quota system was devised for admissions after populations reached the capacity levels for which the schools were designed.

DiSalle said the population at the girls' school, built for 200, has dropped from 250 to 191. Population at the boys' school, built to house 500, now is 646, he added.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Optimism, that little fire burning brightly in the dark woods of the world, got rained on again. So those who insist man is too intelligent to blow himself to blazes must still wait and see.

Talks between the United States and Russia, not only on banning nuclear tests but on disarmament in general, have broken down. On Sept. 9 the two powers recessed their conversations on banning nuclear tests after 340 sessions in 34 months. It was about time, since the Soviets, after a layoff of almost three years, had already resumed testing.

Premier Khrushchev brushed aside such talks anyway. He said there would be no more moratoriums on nuclear tests until there was agreement on general disarmament.

For the inhabitants of the sunny side of the street this was indeed gloomy news but not altogether black because ever since midsummer the United States and Russia had been holding separate talks on disarmament.

Rather, the two sides—in sessions in Washington, Moscow and

New York—had not actually been discussing disarmament but only how to set up full-scale discussion on disarmament.

Then Wednesday this collapsed too. The United States and Russia reported to the United Nations the complete failure of their talks on how to start talking about disarmament in general.

Since the end of the war in 1945 the two countries have had perhaps thousands of conversations on disarmament just the two of them alone or in various international groups in various places. The result is still nothing.

This naturally raises some questions which, while old, are still unanswered.

1. Does Russia really want disarmament or is it stalling until it acquires such a frightening arsenal of weapons that it can terrorize the world into submission?

2. Is it to the best interest of the United States ever to disarm so long as Russia and Red China, with their endless resources of manpower, persist in their campaign to own the earth?

3. Is it possible for a number

By James Marlow

of nations to have the most modern weapons—the United States, Russia, Britain and France have them and Red China will soon—without getting into war with them, by design or accident?

Only one thing is certain: Until there is a disarmament agreement, and no one is offering odds there will be, the United States and Russia will keep on trying to outdo each other in thinking up ever more nightmare weapons.

Girls' Industrial School Freeze Ends

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A freeze on admissions to the Girls' Industrial School at Delaware has been lifted, but it remains on the Lancaster Boys' Industrial School Gov. Michael V. DiSalle says.

The freeze was imposed Aug. 15. It was intended to relieve over-crowding at both institutions. A quota system was devised for admissions after populations reached the capacity levels for which the schools were designed.

DiSalle said the population at the girls' school, built for 200, has dropped from 250 to 191. Population at the boys' school, built to house 500, now is 646, he added.

In 9th, He Asked 'One Good Swing'

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Roger Maris' relentless assault on Babe Ruth's hallowed home run record ended in defeat Wednesday night, but in no way could it be interpreted as a failure.

The left-handed slugger, battling against almost impossible odds, missed matching the immortal Bambino's 60 homers in a 154-game season by the narrowest of margins—just one.

Trailing by two home runs with just one more game remaining, playing in a park which had throttled him in all 26 previous efforts, Maris not only walked his 59th home run of the season but came breathlessly close to smashing two more.

Had the two he barely missed been fair instead of foul, the crew-cut blond from Raytown, Mo., would have achieved the feat of the century.

Only two others had seriously threatened that mark — Jimmy Foxx with 58 in 1932 and Hank Greenberg with 58 in 1938.

The crowd of 21,032, naturally devoted to Ruth, a native Baltimorean, gave Maris, 27, a standing ovation after he had sent a dribbler down the first base line on a checked swing in his last try.

"I tried," he said later. "I didn't quite make it, but I tried."

And how Maris tried. In the first inning, facing Milt Pappas, Baltimore's ace right-hander, he drove a screaming liner to Earl Robinson in deep right.

Determined Bexley Unit Seeks To End Tiger Winning Streak

The Tigers and Lions tangle Friday night as Circleville goes after its third straight win of an undefeated season and second triumph on the CHS field.

Hoping to bar the way to a Bengal victory is a scrappy crew from Bexley High School sporting nine veteran lettermen on a squad of 46 players.

For coach Carl (Benny) Benhase's charges, fresh from a 15-2 pasting of highly-rated Athens on the losers home field, tomorrow's tilt holds the virtual certainty of still another tough battle. Bexley, whose ability betrays a 1-1 record, will bring a strong defense and fair offense to the Circleville gridiron.

Lion coach Ben Tenwale, in his fifth year at the helm of the Bexley unit, reportedly will go with the same starting lineup that opened in last week's 14-8 loss to the powerful St. Charles Cardinals.

THIS WILL place Williamson, a senior, and Dick a junior, at the end posts. Senior Jack Wood, 5' 11" and 195 pounds, will be one of the monogram winners in the Lion's attack. He starts at left tackle. Schmidt is the other tackle.

Booster Club At Laurelville Plans Projects

Projects to raise money were the center of discussion when the Laurelville Athletic Booster Club met this week to plan for the coming sports season.

Several proposals were presented and studied. Definite plans will be formulated later.

A club membership drive is now under way. All interested persons in the Laurelville community are urged to join.

Plans were set for the homecoming game scheduled Oct. 7 with Buchtel. Doc Ebert, Mick Young, and Roger Egan were named to handle the refreshment sales during the contest.

New blankets purchased for the football team were displayed. Dr. Kelley discussed plans to obtain mouth guards for the grid team. Jean West and Florence Stahl volunteered to aid in making the mouthpieces.

Club President Dwight Eveland announced the next meeting for 7:30 p. m. on Oct. 2 at the high school.

Indians Lose In Finale on Home Field

CLEVELAND (AP) — A home run by Bobby Del Greco, Kansas City centerfielder, turned the Cleveland Indians' last home appearance of the season into a losing one.

A crowd of only 2,632 saw Del Greco hit a two-run homer in the ninth to break a 2-2 tie and hand the Indians a 4-2 defeat Wednesday night.

Don Dillard had tied the game in the eighth inning with his seventh homer of the year. But Del Greco connected off Bob Allen, who had relieved starter Barry Latman in the eighth.

Latman, seeking his 14th victory, gave up a run in the third when Dick Howser singled, moved to second on a wild pitch and scored on a single.

The Indians tied it at 1-1 in the fourth. Woodie Held walked and John Romano singled. Del Greco tried to cut down Held at third, but his throw got by Wayne Causey and Held scored.

The A's went ahead 2-1 in the seventh on two hits, one of them a run-scoring single by pitcher Norman Bass. Dillard's homer in the eighth went for naught when Del Greco homered to hand Allen his second loss against three victories.

The Indian meet the A's again in the first of a three-game series at Kansas City Friday night.

Braves To Try For First Win

New Lexington Logan Elm Foe

Logan Elm's Braves will make an all-out effort to get on the victory warpath Saturday night when the Pickaway County squad goes to New Lexington for a grid contest with St. Aloysius High School.

The tribe, victims of two consecutive defeats without a win this season, will be at maximum strength for the St. Aloysius tilt, head coach Keith Merrin said.

The New Lexington outfit is reputed to operate a flashy and often devastating passing game, so most of the Braves practice sessions this week have been devoted to working out an effective aerial defense.

A favorite play of the Lexingtonians is a series of quick openers through the line followed by a fake and a long pass. Merrin said the Logan Elm opponents possess only "fair" speed but quick plays give them an advantage.

MOST OF ALL, they are a very scrappy squad," he added.

A bright spot in the Braves camp has been the showing of junior Jim Harrah, who is playing the left guard position like he owned the field. Otherwise, Merrin said, the team spirit has held up unusually well.

The Logan Elm season opened on a drab note with a 14-6 loss to The Plains at Mt. Sterling. Last week Jonathan Alder took the Braves' measure 16-0 at Plain City. St. Aloysius has yet to win a game, the team's best effort being a 12-12 deadlock last Friday with Laurelville. The opener, Dennison St. Mary's, thumped the New Lexington club by a 28-0 count.

Logan Elm will be using an Oklahoma-style defense to counter the Aloysius passing assault. On offense, quarterback Arnie Gabriel will be called upon to step up the pace with a steady stream of passes. Merrin plans to use the same lineup as in past weeks.

Only Collapse Could Prevent Redleg Win

CINCINNATI (AP)—With eight victories out of the last nine games and a different hero or two in almost every one of them, the Cincinnati Reds today appeared almost certain winners of the National League pennant.

Only a complete collapse now could keep them from their first flag in 21 years. They lead the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers by five games. The Dodgers edged Chicago 3-2 in 13 innings Wednesday night.

The Reds have only seven games left, while the Dodgers have nine.

Wednesday night, Cincinnati staged another one of its come-from-behind attacks in the eighth innings to beat the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2.

A two-run homer by veteran Wally Post not only edged the Reds nearer the pennant, but it was a deciding factor in pitcher Joey Jay's 21st victory.

Both the Reds and the Dodgers are idle today. Cincinnati will open a three-day series Friday night with the San Francisco Giants. The Dodgers will begin a three-game series at the same time in St. Louis.

Ohio Pacer Favored in Today's 'Jug'

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — The largest field in history goes today after $70,000 in the 16th Little Brown Jug classic for 3-year-old pacers.

With three of the nation's top pacers sidelined with injuries no horse looms as a heavy favorite.

Odds-makers have Lang Hanover, owned by Samuel Huttenbauer of Cincinnati, a 2-1 choice in the 10-horse first division. Henry T. Adios is rated a 3-1 favorite to win the second in which nine horses meet.

Should Huttenbauer's Lang Hanover win it all, it will be the first Ohio-owned horse ever to win the fall classic. Lang Hanover, who will be moving out from the pole position, has the season's best time for 3-year-old pacers — a 1:57.4-5.

An added feature for the day's activities is a planned attempt by Adios Butler to break the world's trotting record over a half-mile track which he shares with Bye Bye Byrd at 1:57.4-5.

Adios Butler was scheduled to make his effort Wednesday, but trainer Paige West postponed the try for 24 hours in the hopes of having better track conditions today.

The track, however, suited Impish, a 2-year-old filly, as she posted a 2:03.5 mile in the race-off for the Ohio Standardbred Trot to lower the world's record over a half-mile course.

The old mark of 2:04 was held by Carlene Hanover, who set the record here in 1959, and Spry Rodney, who equalled the time Tuesday.

The bay filly posted straight-heat victories in winning the $12,262 event.

Mrs. Maris Blames Family Superstition

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Watching a telecast of the New York-Baltimore baseball game Wednesday night, Mrs. Roger Maris exchanged seats with another viewer in the ninth inning.

Then she remembered. She and Roger have a superstition that while watching a game, it puts a hex on him.

In the ninth, Maris came up to bat for his last chance to tie Babe Ruth's season home record of 60. He rolled out to the pitcher.

"I knew I shouldn't have moved out of that chair," Mrs. Maris said.

ABC-TV invited Mrs. Maris to watch the game in its studio. She and Maris live in nearby Raytown.

Yanks Nail Falaris Just Misses Homer Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roger Maris strode to the plate in the top of the ninth, dug in and fouled the first pitch by knuckleball specialist Hoyt Wilhelm back of the plate. Wilhelm wound up again, let go and Maris tried to check his swing. He couldn't.

The ball trickled down the first base line.

On that note ended the most serious threat to Babe Ruth's 60-homer record of 1927 as Maris, who had hit No. 59 in the third inning, failed in his final chance to tie baseball's most prized record under the 154-decision edict of Commissioner Ford Frick.

All eyes were on Maris while he took his final shots at the Babe's mark in Baltimore, where the Yankees clinched their 26th American League pennant by whipping the Orioles 4-2 Wednesday night.

"I wanted to get three good swings whether I hit it or not," said Maris in the dressing room while expressing regret over his last time at bat. "The way it turned out, I didn't get one. I would have liked to have taken a full swing."

Browns Emphasize Blocking Practice

CLEVELAND (AP)—Milt Plum, Cleveland Browns quarterback, is all for extra blocking practice in preparation for Sunday's game with the surprising St. Louis Cardinals.

Coach Paul Brown put the emphasis on blocking Wednesday in the first practice session of the week. It's designed to prevent Plum from taking a beating like the one absorbed last Sunday by the New York Giants' Charley Conerly.

Just about the entire starting defensive team for the Cards last season is back. A three-man line and a blitzing safety man caught the Giants unprepared for such tactics this early.

Nicklaus To Head U.S. Americas Cup Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, two-time National Amateur champion, headed a seven-man team chosen today to represent the U.S. against Canada and Mexico in the sixth Americas Cup golf matches Oct. 21-22 in Monterrey City, Mexico. Named with Nicklaus were Deane Beman, Bill Hyndman, Charlie Coe, Bob Gardner, Charlie Smith and Dud Wyson.

Thus Maris joins a long list of homer hammerers who have come within range of Ruth's record, but failed, Roger, however, tied Ruth's mark of 59 in 1921. He became only the second man in major league baseball history to hit that many and still has eight games under the expanded schedule in which to match or surpass Ruth's total.

Hank Greenberg hit 58 homers for Detroit in 1938.

The honor of clinching the Yanks 11th pennant in the last 13 years went to Ralph Terry (15-3) who got the job done for the second year in a row with a four-hitter that made Ralph Houk the first rookie manager in 15 years to win a major league flag.

The last American League first year pilot to do it was Mickey Cochrane of the Detroit Tigers in 1934.

The Yankees wrapped it up with a three-run rally in the third started by Maris' homer off Milt Pappas (12-9). Yogi Berra then followed with a homer and a single by Johnny Blanchard and Elston Howard's double finished off the outburst for a 4-0 lead.

Chicago's Ray Herbert defeated Boston 3-1 with a seven-hitter, and Bobby DelGreco hit a two-run homer in the ninth that gave Kansas City a 4-2 win over Cleveland in other games. Minnesota-Washington was rained out.

Those amazing Cincinnati Reds, a questionable product in the National League race when the season began, have gone methodically about the business of trying to nail down their first pennant in 21 years with a potent attempt on winning one-run games.

The Reds did it again Wednesday night, edging the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 on Wally Post's two-run homer in the eighth inning for their eighth victory in the last nine games and a 34-14 won-loss record in one-run games.

The victory went to right-hander Joey Jay (21-8), the only NL pitcher with 20 wins, and reduced the Reds' magic pennant-clinching number to four over second-place Los Angeles. The Dodgers also won by a single run, nipping Chicago 3-2 in 13 innings.

Milwaukee beat San Francisco 7-4 and Philadelphia defeated St. Louis 6-1 in other games.

Post's 20th homer came with Vada Pinson on base via a walk and brought the Reds from behind to beat the Pirates and reliever Elroy Face (6-11).

The Dodgers, beaten two nights in a row by the seventh-place Cubs, remained five games behind the first-place Reds by pushing the winning run across in the 13th when Wally Moon singled, reached second on a ground out, moved to third on a passed ball and scored on Ron Fairly's two-out single.

Sandy Koufax (18-11) went the distance for the victory striking out 15 for a 259 total this season, and moved within eight of tying the modern league record of 267 by Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants in 1903. Barney Schultz (7-6), third Chicago pitcher, was the loser.

Wisconsin Boasts Big Ten's Prize Passing Combination

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series on the major football teams in the Midwest.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor
MADISON, Wis. — Milt Bruhn, the Wisconsin football coach, always is smiling when he meets the press so it's a bit difficult sometimes to determine whether that means the Badgers are going to be good or bad.

With the best passing combination in the Big Ten in quarterback Ron Miller and giant end Pat Richter returning, plus 17 other lettermen and Milt's apparent optimistic view of the situation, it appears that the Badgers will be right up there and certainly must be rated as among the contenders for the Conference crown.

This would be a switch, too, for last year the Badgers wound up ninth with a 4-5 mark after coping the crown the year before.

In a hurry-up session with the Skywriters here, an interview-eating rush job, Bruhn admitted that "we'll have an improved club" and was especially impressed with the "hard-nosed newcomers who will fit into the defensive picture", a department which Bruhn labels as his No. 1 problem.

Another concern is the greenness of his left halfbacks, Jim Nettles, Louie Holland and Dave Vollmer, all sophomores, but all of them speed merchants who should give the Badgers more "go" this year.

WE'LL HAVE three halfbacks carrying the ball," Bruhn says, "who have never carried the ball for us before." However, he must think enough of them, particularly Nettles and Holland, because he moved Merritt Norvell, regular left half to the right half spot.

Miller, who led the Big Ten in passing and total offense last year although bothered severely by injuries to both ankles, has an outstanding receiver in the 229-pound, 6-foot 5½-inch Richter, who suffered a broken collarbone in the Michigan game just when he was on his way to setting new Wisconsin receiving records.

Behind Miller is Co-Captain Jim Bakken, also injured last year, who is the team's punter and described by Bruhn as "one of the best in the country." Behind Norvell at right half is Bill Smith, another sophomore and another speedster.

Bruhn describes his fullbacks, Neil Fleming, Jim Purnell and Erv Kimesh, as "the blocking type." Fleming played behind Tom Wiesner last year and Purnell is a sophomore. Bruhn describes Fleming as "the most improved player on the squad."

The Badger defense tailed off after the Michigan game last year and Bruhn's chief complaint is that his line will be too light, in fact, "the lightest in the Conference." The line will average about 212.

"I'm worried about our size," Bruhn tells you, "especially that our players won't be able to stand up under the power of the other teams."

OPPOSITE Richter is Ron Staley at left end and he's a good one, too. He had 19 receptions last year and three TDs. Dave Biehler and Ron Carlson are two other lettermen receivers and also in this picture is Elmars Ezerins, a giant junior, who was born in Latvia and scored two touchdowns last year.

Ezerins, incidentally, caught a pass for what appeared to be a 67-yard touchdown on the first play last year, but stepped out of bounds and it was called back. He is quick and came to Wisconsin with the fable that he used to catch rats by hand.

Dale Matthews and Brian Moore, both with playing time last year, are the tackles, with an outstanding sophomore, Roger Pillath, a 240-pounder, tabbed as having a great potential.

At the guards are Co-Captain Don Schade and Don Vander-Velder, both with experience although Vander-Velder was an end and tackle. Schade played over 200 minutes last year. Jim Schenk, a sophomore, may work in here. Dick Baer, a senior, is the center and is backed up by Ken Bowman, sophomore, and Ren Henrici, a Jayvee development.

There are 20 Illinois boys on the squad and when Bruhn is asked to explain this he says: "All I can say is that the new toll road certainly has helped us."

Wisconsin started out fast last year, winning over Stanford, Marquette and Purdue. But then the Badgers lost to Iowa and Ohio State before beating Michigan. The Badgers wound up by losing to Northwestern, Illinois and Minnesota.

The 1961 schedule lists Utah, Michigan State, Indiana, Oregon State, Iowa, Ohio State, Northwestern, Illinois and Minnesota.

Old Cincinnati To Blow Her Top

CINCINNATI (AP)—Staid old Cincinnati is getting ready to blow its top.

It might be this coming weekend, it might be next week or it might not ever occur—a horrible thought.

But if and when it happens it will be when the word flashes that the Cincinnati Reds have clinched their first National League pennant since 1940.

Just about all you could hear today was talk about the Reds. It didn't matter whether you were in a restaurant for a bite of breakfast, on a trolley bus going to work, in a bank or just standing on the corner waiting for a traffic light.

"It only takes five now," was the word heard most often.

That meant any combination of five Cincinnati victories and Los Angeles defeats would bring Cincinnati its championship.

On the ironic side is the problem Redleg bosses are facing — World Series tickets. Screams of pain from fans because they can't get tickets for small Crosley Field probably will be heard all the way from Cincinnati to Cleveland.

And most of them will come from persons who haven't seen a game all season.

Only 14,225 fans showed up for Tuesday night's game against Pittsburgh and a visiting baseball writer remarked "Your town doesn't deserve a pennant winner."

A lot of Cincinnati fans talk baseball but don't pay to see it.

The Reds, however, have drawn over a million fans for only the third time in history.

Downtown hotels for the most part are sold out for World Series week. Motels near the downtown district report the same thing and they insisted rooms be taken for three days with cash on the line by Oct. 1.

In the meantime, Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick has announced that ticket prices for the World Series will range from $2.05 for a bleacher seat in Cincinnati to $10.50 for a box seat in New York.

He also listed a scale of $2.00-$10.00 for seats if the Los Angeles Dodgers win the National League pennant.

Prices for the first and second and sixth and seventh — if played — games in New York including local and federal taxes are $2.10 each, $4.20 standing room, $7.35 reserved, and $10.50 box. In Cincinnati for the third, fourth and fifth—if played—they are $2.05 each, $4.10 standing, $7.20 reserved, and $10.25 box.

The first two games in the best four out of seven series between Cincinnati and New York will be Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 4 and 5, in New York. Friday, Oct. 6, is open. The next games will be at Crosley Field in Cincinnati, Oct. 7, 8, and 9. Tuesday, Oct. 10, is open, and if no decision has been reached, the series concludes Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 11 and 12, in New York.

All games start at 1:00 p. m., local time.

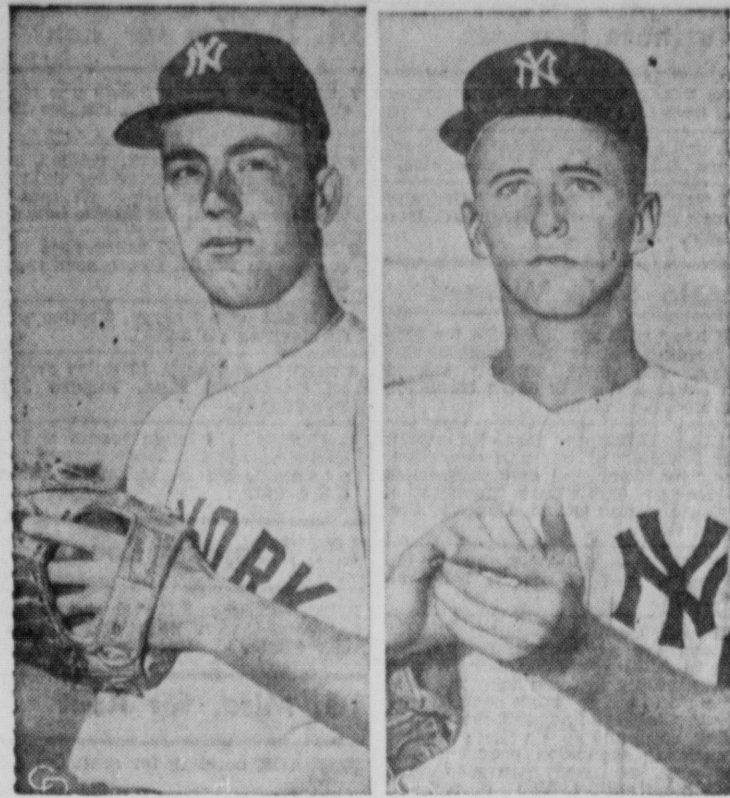

New York Attorney To Head Agency

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today picked New York attorney Fowler Hamilton to head the new foreign aid agency.

The selection was Kennedy's solution to a thorny problem of obtaining a man who could command wide support as director of the Agency for International Development.

Hamilton previously had figured in speculation as to a successor to Allen Dulles as head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Brown, White, Green are major league ball players. Catcher Dick Brown is with Detroit, Sammy White with Milwaukee and Pumpsie Green with Boston and Lenny Green with Minnesota.

Roland Sheldon

YOUTHFUL HELP FOR YANKS—Pitching of the two star youngsters, Roland Sheldon and Bill Stafford, on the Yankee staff has helped the Bombers to their lofty position in the pennant race. Stafford has won 12 games and Sheldon nine. Stafford, in his first full year, is 22, and Sheldon, in his first major league season, is 21. (Central Press)

Porky Oliver Dies Of Cancer at 46

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Ed (Porky) Oliver, who started out as a caddy at the age of 11 and went on to become one of the leading professional golfers during the last two decades, died Wednesday of cancer. He was 46.

His wife, Clara, was at his bedside in Memorial Hospital when he died. Oliver had been in and out of the hospital since leaving the pro circuit nearly two years ago. He had undergone two operations.

Oliver, who started as a caddy at the Wilmington Country Club and turned pro at the age of 18 in 1933, never won a major championship but he helped the U.S. Ryder Cup team to victories over England in 1947, 1951 and 1953.

20-1 Shot Collects Lebanon Feature Purse

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Coming from behind in the stretch, 20-1 shot Claudete Wednesday night overtook the leaders to win the featured eighth race at Lebanon Raceway by half a length.

Chicagoan To Be New Comptroller

WASHINGTON (AP)—In an on-again, off-again bit of White House byplay, President Kennedy has named Chicago lawyer James J. Saxon to replace Ray M. Gidney as comptroller of currency.

The appointment, announced Wednesday, will become effective Nov. 15.

Gidney, a Republican, has disagreed strongly with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, the president's brother, over antitrust policy on bank mergers.

The White House announced nomination of Saxon, a Democrat, Wednesday afternoon. A spokesman said he understood Gidney was stepping out under a verbal agreement with Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon.

Less than two hours later, the White House withdrew the nomination. The Treasury Department said it was all a mistake, that the nomination had been sent to the White House "as a result of a clerical error in the rush at the close of the session in Congress."

Still later, the White House press secretary, Pierre Salinger, summoned reporters back to the White House and said Gidney is resigning effective Nov. 15 and Saxon would succeed him in the $20,500 job.

Gidney's term is not scheduled to expire until 1963. Saxon will be given a recess appointment to finish out Gidney's term. The nomination requires Senate approval.

Pennsy-NYC Merger Said Still Possible

WASHINGTON (AP)—James M. Symes, chairman and chief executive of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said Wednesday the door is still open to a possible merger between his railroad and the New York Central.

Symes appeared as a surprise rebuttal witness before the Interstate Commerce Commission on behalf of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, which is being contested for control of the Baltimore & Ohio by the Central.

"The door is not closed if the New York Central wants to talk about merger—provided there is a stipulation of good faith at the outset," Symes said.

He recalled that the Central and Pennsylvania had agreed to a merger study in 1958, but said talks were broken off by A. E. Perlman, Central president.

Perlman, at a news conference after Symes testified, said he stood on his previous testimony and did not feel a Central-Pennsylvania merger would be in the public interest.

In response to a question, he said he felt strongly that the ICC would not approve such a merger.

Symes said if a Central-Pennsylvania merger were effected there would still be a balanced competitive system in the East. He envisioned that there might then evolve three systems—the Central-Pennsylvania; the C&O-B&O and the Norfolk & Western - Nickel Plate-Wabash system.

"The door is not closed if the New York Central wants to talk about merger—provided there is a stipulation of good faith at the outset," Symes said.

He recalled that the Central and Pennsylvania had agreed to a merger study in 1958, but said talks were broken off by A. E. Perlman, Central president.

Perlman, at a news conference after Symes testified, said he stood on his previous testimony and did not feel a Central-Pennsylvania merger would be in the public interest.

In response to a question, he said he felt strongly that the ICC would not approve such a merger.

Symes said if a Central-Pennsylvania merger were effected there would still be a balanced competitive system in the East. He envisioned that there might then evolve three systems—the Central-Pennsylvania, the C&O-B&O and the Norfolk & Western - Nickel Plate-Wabash system.

Chillicothe's long-sought East Main Street overpass will be opened to traffic on Saturday, Oct. 7.

Chillicothe City Manager C. R. Lukens said the decision was made after conferring with O. Carson Barklow, Division 9 engineer of the State Highway Department and representatives of Visitine & Co., the contractor. However, some minor work will be done after the structure is opened.

An official opening ceremony is being planned for 10 a. m. Oct. 7 by the Chillicothe Area Chamber of Commerce highway committee. Francis H. Wagner is the general chairman of the event.

Barnacles swim when they are young. In time they attach themselves permanently to an object, frequently the bottom of a ship or a whale.
